Constitutions

Constitutions: their nature and origins

- Traditionally, constitutions have been associated with two key purposes:
 - o They were believed to provide a description of government itself
 - o They were regarded as the linchpin of liberal democracy
- Neither of these views are correct
- Constitutions AIM to lay down a framework in which government and political activity are conducted, none has been entirely successful in this respect.
- Inaccuracies, distortions and omissions can be found in all constitutions.
- The objective of constitutions is to lay down certain meta-rules for the political system.
- In effect, these are rules that govern the government itself.
- The purpose of a constitution is to bring stability, predictability and order to the actions of government.
- Constitutions are a relatively recent development – Was initiated by the enactment of the first 'written' constitutions: the US Constitution in 1787 and the French Declaration of the Rights of Man and the Citizen in 1789.
- Constitutions are a means of establishing a new political order following the rejection, collapse or failure of an old order.
- Constitutional change is about the reapportionment of both power and political authority.

Classifying Constitutions

- Constitutions can be classified in many different ways:
 - o The form of constitution and status of its rules
 - o The ease with which the constitution can be changed
 - o The degree to which the constitution is observed in practice
 - o The content of the constitution and the institutional structure that it establishes

Written and Unwritten Constitutions

- In theory, written constitutions are enshrined in laws whilst unwritten constitutions are supposedly embodied in custom and tradition.
- Only three liberal democracies (Israel, New Zealand and the UK) continue to have unwritten constitutions, together with a handful of non-democratic states such as Bhutan, Saudi Arabia and Oman.
- Classification has always been misleading
 - o no constitution is entirely written in the sense that all its rules are formally and legally enforceable.
 - o Similarly, no constitution is entirely unwritten, in the sense that none of its provisions have any legal substance, all of them being conventions, customs or traditions.
- Every constitution is a blend of written and unwritten rules, although the balance between these varies significantly.
- More helpful than the written/unwritten distinction is the contrast between codified and uncoded constitutions.
 - o Codified = based on the existence of a single authoritative document
 - o Uncodified = made up of rules drawn from a variety of sources

Codified

- Document itself is authoritative in the sense it constitutes 'higher' law
- Binds all political institutions – establishes a hierarchy of laws
