A Hypothetical Enhanced Renewable Energy Utilization (EREU) Model for Electricity Generation in Thailand Thomas Andexer, 2008-10-29 Master s Thesis from the year 2008 in the subject Environmental Sciences grade Passed Assumption University of Thailand College of Internet Distance Education CIDE School of Business Administration course Master Thesis Project language English abstract This thesis presents a research project entitled A Hypothetical Enhanced Renewable Energy Utilization EREU Model for Electricity Generation in Thailand This research is motivated by Thailand s rapidly increasing electricity consumption caused by the country s long standing above average economic growth Consequently the rising electricity demand can only be satisfied by continuously growing electricity imports and thus creating a significant burden to Thailand s national budget Further more Thailand is heavily dependent on natural gas reserves for electricity generation however these are expected to be depleted within only three decades and global price levels for conventional fuels are increasingly volatile with an ascending tendency as well Therefore Thailand faces an urgent need to strategically plan for the broad utilization of domestic renewable energy resources which is essential for a more diversified and thus sustainable electricity generation as well as for the nation's endeavor to become an energy hub within the South East Asian region. Under these circumstances, this research conducts a comprehensive literature review regarding the past development as well as the current situation of renewable energy utilization in Thailand, which concludes in the identification of the importance of renewable energy in the given context and closes with both a distinctive need assessment and a conceptual framework for Thailand's future renewable energy strategy. Subsequently, the research introduces a unique primary research endeavor in the form of an explorative expert interview survey, which succeeds in a substantial collection of qualitative and in-depth data. These valuable data is first objectively analyzed and second subjectively interpreted and summarized to become the major source for the derivation of a multitude of potential strategic recommendations for an enhanced future renewable energy utilization development in Thailand. Finally, the entirety of these recommended strategic approaches based on both the secondary and primary research are assembled to develop the Enhanced Renewable Energy Utilization (EREU) model for electricity generation in Thailand as the fundamental finding of this thesis and research project respectively.

Brands in the Retrospective. A consumer motivation study Nora Henning, 2005-03-20 Master's Thesis from the year 2004 in the subject Business economics / Offline Marketing and Online Marketing grade 817 Maastricht University Faculty of Economics and Business Administration Department of Marketing language English abstract One notable trend that can be observed in the 21st century is the increasing visibility of objects that stem from or look like products of past times. In nearly every market segment, consumers nowadays can find products from bygone decades. Concerning automobiles, for example, the industry offers the New Beetle of Volkswagen, a modernised version of the Mini Cooper of BMW and the PT Cruiser of Chrysler. With regard to furniture, consumers witness the reoccurrence of beanbag chairs and fringed carpets. Flokati, just like the ones that were popular during the 70ies. Fashion companies like Hennes & Seidel (2003) sometimes these products are just nostalgia styled like the PT Cruiser. The vehicle looks partly like a 1920s gangster car, partly like a 1950s hot rod and partly like a London taxicab. Ball (1999). However, other products appear with the name of a once very prominent brand. These brands had either completely disappeared from the market or had become, for some reason, unfavourable in the eyes of consumers and sales levelled towards zero.

narrative be shaped and evolved Stories of human trafficking are prolific in the public domain proving immensely powerful in guiding our understandings of trafficking and offering something tangible on which to base policy and action Yet these stories also misrepresent the problem establishing a dominant narrative that stifles other stories and fails to capture the complexity of human trafficking This book deconstructs the human trafficking narrative in public discourse examining the victims villains and heroes of trafficking stories Sex slaves exploited workers mobsters pimps and johns consumers governments and anti trafficking activists are all characters in the story serving to illustrate who is to blame for the problem of trafficking and how that problem might be solved Erin O'Brien argues that a constrained narrative of ideal victims foreign villains and western heroes dominates the discourse underpinned by cultural assumptions about gender and ethnicity and wider narratives of border security consumerism and western exceptionalism Drawing on depictions of trafficking in entertainment and news media awareness campaigns and government reports in Australia the United Kingdom and the United States of America this book will be of interest to criminologists political scientists sociologists and those engaged with human rights activism and the politics of international justice
