

BRANDS THAT MAKE THE BEST CARS

We rank automakers from best to worst on their scores and survey results.

by JEFF S. KRAFT/CR

How we made the rankings: The Report based its automaker brand scores on four key factors: (1) our tests, including owner satisfaction and safety; (2) the reliability index, which we built through more than 10 years of reliability research; (3) the quality index, which we built through more than 10 years of quality research; and (4) the value index, which we built through more than 10 years of value research. These four factors are combined to create the overall score. The overall score is then used to rank the automakers from best to worst. The overall score is also used to rank the automakers from best to worst. The overall score is also used to rank the automakers from best to worst.

and vehicle ownership of its automakers can show you if the right direction when making a new car purchase. These ratings are based on the average Overall Score, a combination of our most recent reliability, safety, and owner satisfaction data, and reflect the all of the models from each automaker. The top five brands this year are the same ones as 2023, with BMW leading the pack with an 87 score, followed by Subaru with an 85 score, followed by Porsche with an 84 score.

It's also worth noting that some high-scoring brands may have better-performing models, so be sure to check the ratings for the car you're considering. This is especially true for bigger brands like Ford and Toyota, which have some models that performed far better than others in our tests.

If the brands CR ranked this year seem disappointing, you may want to look at the scores for some of the models from these companies with confidence. There are also brands that didn't have a single model recommended by CR, but that could be when buying one of those. To be included in the overall ranking, CR has to have tested at least two current models from a company. We've tested only one model from Lexus, Polestar, and Ram, so they aren't included this year.
