

Essay Sample on Cheerleading Is a Sport Essay

Introduction

Cheerleading is an activity of its kind that generally has the participants (commonly called cheerleaders) celebrate for their team as a form of encouragement. It involves a range of activities ranging from slogan chanting to physical activities that are intense. It can be performed or undertaken with a goal of motivating the sports team or the players of a game. It can also be used to entertain the audience or for the purposes of competing. Just to put a disclaimer, there is a difference between sideline cheerleading and competitive cheerleading. Many people may think that when cheerleading is mentioned, it is often sideline cheerleading, here there are usually cheerleaders on the side of the sporting activity with a target of motivating the players as they cheer them (Grindstaff & West 7) On the other hand, competitive cheerleading is entirely different, it involves tumbling, the pyramid, jumping, dancing and tumbling.

The tumbles are usually like the routine floor in the gymnastics but with a lot of more people at once. There are stunts which come together to make the pyramid that is mostly conducted in groups of people of about four and vary in level depending on the need and the essence. Standard stunt groups are composed of two bases, a flyer, and a back. It is a common thing, and part of the sporting activity to fall during a stunt, but one thing that is taught as a flyer is how to possible fall in a way that is safe

Cheerleading is, therefore, is a sport. The proof that it is a sport is overwhelming - the fact that it involves activities that are of similar characteristics as other sporting activities. The thing about competitive cheerleading is that is as at one through six. Thus, one can be part of an entry level cheerleader with little or no experience at all (Grindstaff & West 12).

It used to be opposed in the early past by the Federation of the gymnastics. They were a lot of concerns that there could be some confusion between the sports and there came a great need to bring forth clear distinctions. Similarly, the Federation of gymnastics had initially opposed the addition of cheerleading in the beginning. Because of this, the federation since then became an ally. Initial concerns revolved around the complete confusion that existed between acrobatic or rhythmic gymnastics and cheerleading, this, in turn, led to a final accord that in a way prevented the required minimum number to be 16 members for an international competition. The expansion that has been happening in the united states have cheerleading being a sport as among the developments that have been realized. The sources reveal that America might have been in a way not aware just how much and large the international stage had become for the sport of cheerleading. In addition to the one hundred and ten of the federations that fall under the ICU members, seventy nations were represented at 2015 world cheerleading championship (Anderson 14).

According to Glatt (121), there are proofs that are given to make the point clear home- that cheerleading is part of the sporting activity. The author goes on to define a sport as any activity involving physical exertion and skill in which an individual or team do compete against another or others for entertainment purposes. He continues to state that athletes are cheerleaders and that cheerleaders are the athletes that work hard and are the committee to the sports of cheerleading.
