Design Noir The Secret Life Of Electronic Objects:

Design Noir Anthony Dunne, Fiona Raby, 2001 Dunne and Raby investigate the real physical and cultural effects of the digital domain demonstrating that mobile phones computers and other electronic objects such as televisions profoundly influence people's experience of their environment Their ideas have important implications for architecture and design In this their first major book they introduce their extraordinary new way of thinking about objects space and behaviour to a broad audience The book is divided into three sections 1 Manifesto introducing the authors ideas about electromagnetic space 2 Conversations in which Dunne and Raby talk to a variety of designers architects and artists about the impact electronic technology has on their practice 3 Placebo presenting the intriguing results of a project involving Dunne and Raby's working furniture prototypes including a chair that lets the sitter know when radiation is passing through his body

Design Noir Anthony Dunne, Fiona Raby, 2001 The first book to be published on the work of their partnership in 2001 Design Noir is the essential primary source for understanding the theoretical and conceptual underpinnings for Dunne's notes for an embryonic network of critical designers and most famously the presentation of the Placebo Project a prototype for a critical design poetics enacted around electronic furniture objects Design Noir offers an in depth exploration of one of the most seminal design projects of the last two decades one that arguably initiated speculating through design in its contemporary forms By detailing the logic and character of the objects that were constructed the involvement of users with these objects over time and in the creation of a new kind of spatially and temporally distributed moments of critique and engagement with things Design Noir presents the case study of the Placebo project as a far more complex and subtler project than is often thought As a bold and in many ways unprecedented experiment in design writing and book designing Design Noir is itself an instance of the speculative propositional design it expounds Design Noir Anthony Dunne, Fiona Raby, 2001

Emotionally Durable Design Jonathan Chapman, 2012-04-27 This book is a call to arms for professionals students and academic creatives proposing the emergence of a new genre of sustainable design that reduces consumption and waste by increasing the durability of relationships established between users and products Chapman pioneers a radical design about face to reduce the impact of modern consumption without compromising commercial or creative edge The author explores the essential question why do users discard products that still work It transports the reader beyond symptom focused approaches to sustainable design such as recycling biodegradability and disassembly to address the actual causes that underpin the environmental crisis we face The result is a revealing exploration of consumer psychology the deep motivations that fuel the human condition and a rich treasure of creative strategies that will enable designers from a range of disciplines to explore new ways of thinking and designing of objects capable of supporting deeper and more meaningful relationships with their users Drifting by Intention Peter Gall Krogh, Ilpo Koskinen, 2020-03-11 Constructive design research is an exploratory endeavor building exemplars arguments and evidence In this monograph it is shown how acts of designing builds relevance and articulates knowledge in combination Using design acts to build new knowledge invite reframing of questions and new perceptions to build up Respecting the emergence of new knowledge in the process invite change of cause and action The authors term for this change is drifting designers drift and they drift intentionally knowing what they do The book details how drifting is a methodic practice of its own and provides examples of how and where it happens This volume explores how to do it effectively and how it depends on the concept of knowledge The authors identify four epistemic traditions in constructive design research By introducing a Knowledge Relevance model they clarify how design experiments create knowledge and what kinds of challenges and contributions designers face when drifting Along the lines of experimental design work the authors identify five main ways in which constructive experiments drift Only one of them borrows its practices from experimental science others build on precedents including arts and craft practices As the book reveals constructive design research builds on a rich body of research that finds its origins in some of the most important intellectual movements of 20th century This background further expands constructive design research from a scientific model towards a more welcoming understanding of research and knowledge This monograph provides novel actionable models for steering and navigating processes of constructive design research It helps skill the design researcher in participating in the general language games of research and helps the design researcher build research relations beyond the discipline

Moving Objects Damon Taylor, 2020-09-17 Moving Objects deals with emotive design designed objects that demand to be engaged with rather than simply used If postmodernism depended upon ironic distance and Critical Design is all about questions then emotive design runs hotter than this confronting how designers are using feelings in what they make Damon Taylor s original study considers these emotionally laden highly authored works often produced in limited editions and sold like art objects such as a chair made from cuddly toys a leather sofa that resembles a cow and a jewellery box fashioned from human hair Tracing the phenomenon back to the Dutch inflection that began with Droog designers like Jurgen Bey and Hella Jongerius Taylor conducts an analysis of the development of Design Art and looks for its origins in the uncanny explorations of surrealism Offering a critique of Speculative Design and an examination of the work of designers such as Mathias Bengtsson whose work involves growing furniture inside computers Taylor asks what happens when the tangible melts into the datascape and design becomes a question of mobilities In this way Moving Objects examines contemporary issues of how we live with artefacts and what design can do
