The research focusses on the protection of consumers' economic rights and highlights the shortcomings that the law struggles to control. Assembling Tomorrow Scott Doorley, Carissa Carter, Stanford d.school, 2024-06-18 A powerful guide to why even the most well intentioned innovations go haywire and the surprising ways we can change course to create a more positive future by two celebrated experts working at the intersection of design technology and learning at Stanford University's acclaimed d.school. This brilliant book offers a new approach to all creative work that will expand your understanding of what it means to make and open up possibilities you didn't know existed. It did for me. Adam Johnson Pulitzer Prize winning author of The Orphan Master's Son. In Assembling Tomorrow authors Scott Doorley and Carissa Carter explore the intangible forces that prevent us from anticipating just how fantastically technology can get out of control and what might be in store for us if we don't start using new tools and tactics. Despite our best intentions our most transformative innovations tend to have consequences we can't always predict. From the effects of social media to the uncertainty of AI and the consequences of climate change the outcomes of our creations ripple across our lives. Time and again our seemingly ceaseless capacity to create rubs up against our limited capacity to understand our impact. Assembling Tomorrow explores how to use readily accessible tools to both mend the mistakes of our past and shape our future for the better. We live in an era of runaway design where innovations tangle with our lives in unpredictable ways. This book explores the off kilter feelings of today and follows up with actionables to alter your perspective and help you find opportunities in these turbulent times. Mixed throughout are histories of the future short pieces of speculative fiction that imagine the future as if it has already happened and consider the past with a critical yet hopeful eye so that all of us as designers of our own futures can create a better world for generations to come.

Civic Engagement in Food System Governance Alan R. Hunt, 2015-10-05 The local food movement is one of the most active of current civil engagement social movements. This work presents primary evidence from over 900 documents interviews and participant observations and provides the first descriptive history of local food movement national policy achievements in the US from 1976 to 2013 and in the UK from 1991 to 2013 together with reviews of both the American and British local food movements.

It provides a US UK comparative context significantly updating earlier comparisons of American British and European farm and rural policies The comparative perspective shows that over time more effective strategies for national policy change required social movement building strategies such as collaborative policy coalitions capacity building for smaller organizations and policy entrepreneurship for joining together separate rural farming food and health interests In contrast narrowly defined single issue campaigns often undermined long term policy change even if short term wins emerged By profiling interviews of American and English movement leaders policymakers and funders the book demonstrates that democratic participation in food policy is best supported when funders incentivize groups to work together and overcome their differences
