a. Use a complete sentence to describe what the new cells in telophase might contain if replication of chromosomes did not occur before cytokinesis.

the new cells might contain only half of the original number of chromosomes, or one cell might contain more chromosomes than the other if replication did not occur before cytokinesis.

The cell must copy the chromosome material to there is enough to make two new cells with the correct chromosomes number

11. Refer to Model 1. The chromosomes that are shaped like "X" (made of two sister chromatids) have double the amount of DNA than the chromosomes that are shaped like "I." During what phase of the cell cycle do you think the chromosomes are replicated (copied)?
