Gender, Nutrition, and the Human Right to

Adequate Food Anne C. Bellows, Flavio L.S. Valente, Stefanie Lemke, María Daniela Núñez Burbano de Lara, 2015-12-07 This book introduces the human right to adequate food and nutrition as an evolving concept and identifies two structural disconnects fueling food insecurity for a billion people and disproportionately affecting women, children and rural food producers: the separation of women's rights from their right to adequate food and nutrition and the fragmented attention to food as commodity and the medicalization of nutritional health. Three conditions arising from these disconnects are discussed: structural violence and discrimination frustrating the realization of women's human rights as well as their private and public contributions to food and nutrition security for all; many women's experience of their and their children's simultaneously independent and intertwined subjectivities during pregnancy and breastfeeding being poorly understood in human rights law and abused by poorly regulated food and nutrition industry marketing practices and the neoliberal economic system's interference both with the autonomy and self-determination of women and their communities and with the strengthening of sustainable diets based on democratically governed local food systems. The book calls for a social movement led reconceptualization of the right to adequate food toward incorporating gender, women's rights and nutrition based on the food sovereignty framework.

At the Doors of Legality Michael G. Donovan (City planner), 2007 Urban land policy design and administration are undergoing a profound democratization throughout the developing world where many housing systems operate outside planning codes and lawyers' law. City planners have emerged as gatekeepers of legal property when only a generation ago federal agencies controlled most land reform programs. Simultaneously, legislation such as Brazil's Statute of the City has accommodated adverse possession and a wider gamut of tenure that individual titling programs often discredited. To date, however, there has been little agreement on what interventions enable planners to incorporate a continuum of land rights. This dissertation examines the emergence and implementation of three flexible models of property legalization in Brazilian informal settlements. These include community designed zoning on municipal land, Recife's PREZEIS regularization of individual plots on unauthorized subdivisions, Rio de Janeiro's Nucleo de Regularizacao de Loteamentos Morar Legal Program and a program sponsored by Brazil's Ministry of Cities that offers leasehold to residents on federal property, Papel Passado. This research addresses how property markets are formed through interaction between titling logics from above and individual motivations of residents favelados from below. It identifies which communities are being legalized, which are being excluded and the processes responsible for these patterns.

Mechanization for Rural Development Josef Kienzle, John E. Ashburner, B. G. Sims, 2013 This publication gives a wide ranging perspective on the present state of mechanization in the developing world and as such constitutes a solid platform on which to build strategies for a sustainable future. Farm mechanization forms an integral plank in the implementation of sustainable crop production intensification methodologies and sustainable intensification necessarily means that the protection of natural resources and the production of ecosystem services go hand in hand with intensified production practices This requires specific mechanization measures to allow crops to be established with minimum soil disturbance to allow the soil to be protected under organic cover for as long as possible and to establish crop rotations and associations to feed the soil and to exploit crop nutrients from various soil horizons This work is the starting point to help the reader understand the complexities and requirements of the task ahead Development Studies Reader Chuo Kikuu cha Dar es Salaam.
