Introduction to Engineering Design Edsgn, 2008 Integrated Product, Process and Enterprise Design Ben Wang, 1997-08-31 The need exists in the private sector and government manufacturing sites to reduce product development time production lead times inventory and non value added activities At the same time there is increased pressure to improve manufacturing process yields production efficiency and resource utilization Much of the technology required to meet these needs already exists but an integrated structure that can demonstrate the potential for the technology in a concurrent engineering context does not. This book provides a road map for building the integrated technology environment to evaluate existing products manufacturing processes and system design tools. This book details innovative approaches that will significantly improve design manufacturing technology development and deployment capabilities for civilian and defense applications. These approaches are integrated product process and system design IPPSD initiatives which will greatly enhance the manufacturing competitiveness of the economy. These approaches involve the use of simulation modeling tools and computerized virtual workstations in conjunction with a design environment which allows a diverse group of researchers, manufacturers and suppliers to work within a comprehensive network of shared knowledge. The IPPSD infrastructure consists of virtual workstations, servers and a suite of simulation, quantitative computational, analytical, experimental and qualitative tools. Such an IPPSD infrastructure will permit effective and efficient predictions of complete product design, manufacturing process design and customer satisfaction.
