
Chapter 33: The Urinary System

DeWit: Medical-Surgical Nursing: Concepts & Practice, 3rd Edition

MULTIPLE CHOICE

1. An 85-year-old patient who has been NPO since midnight last night for diagnostic testing just completed the procedure. Which intervention is most important?
- Inform the patient about the test results.
 - Obtain the patient's weight for comparison to the morning value.
 - Turn the patient every 2 hours.
 - Offer 4 ounces of water or juice every hour.

ANS: D

Offering small amounts of fluid every hour will rehydrate the older adult without resorting to intravenous fluids. The older adult has very little fluid reserve and has lost the ability to concentrate the urine; consequently, a long period without fluid intake can cause dehydration. The doctor should inform the patient about the test results. Weighing the patient again is unnecessary. While prevention of skin breakdown is important, there is no indication that the patient cannot reposition independently.

2. The nurse cautions the diabetic patient that diabetes affects the blood flow through the kidney. Which statement indicates that the patient understands the nurse's teaching?
- "Long-term high blood sugars provide an environment for bacteria to grow, which can damage my kidneys."
 - "Diabetes causes changes to blood vessels, which impacts blood flow to my kidneys."
 - "Diabetes causes an immune response and exposes my kidneys to antibody complexes."
 - "Long-term insulin use leads to scarring on the kidneys."

ANS: B

The long-term effect of diabetes is generalized vasoconstriction, which leads many diabetic patients to renal insufficiency and renal failure. Diabetes can increase a patient's risk for infection. Diabetes does not cause exposure to antibody complexes. Insulin usage does not scar the kidneys.
