

Guidelines for Preparing a Research Report (developed by the American Chemical Society)

Recommended Format for the required CHE 495 Progress Reports*

Research experience is as close to a professional problem-solving activity as anything in the curriculum. It provides exposure to research methodology and an opportunity to work closely with a faculty advisor. It usually requires the use of advanced concepts, a variety of experimental techniques, and state-of-the-art instrumentation. Ideally, undergraduate research should focus on a well-defined project that stands a reasonable chance of completion in the time available. A literature survey alone is not a satisfactory research project. Neither is repetition of established procedures.

Research is genuine exploration of the unknown that leads to new knowledge which often warrants publication. But whether or not the results of a research project are publishable, the project should be communicated in the form of a formal research report written by the student. It is important to realize that science depends on precise transmission of facts and ideas. Preparation of a comprehensive written research report is an essential part of a valid research experience, and the student should be aware of this requirement at the outset of the project. Interim reports may also be required, usually at the termination of the quarter or semester. Sufficient time should be allowed for satisfactory completion of reports, taking into account that initial drafts should be critiqued by the faculty advisor and corrected by the student at each stage.

Guidelines on how to prepare a professional-style research report are not routinely available. For this reason, the following information on report writing and format is provided to be helpful to undergraduate researchers and faculty advisors.

Organization of the Research Report

Most scientific research reports, irrespective of the field, parallel the method of scientific reasoning. That is: the problem is defined, a hypothesis is created, experiments are devised to test the hypothesis, experiments are conducted, and conclusions are drawn. This framework is consistent with the following organization of a research report:

- Title
- Abstract
- Introduction
- Experimental Details or Theoretical Analysis
- Results
- Discussion
- Conclusions and Summary
- References

*A research report must be filed at the end of each semester that you are enrolled in CHE 495 in order for you to receive a grade. If you are planning to continue your project for several semesters, the reports for the initial semesters are considered to be progress reports and should follow the recommended format.

Sustainability Reporting by Mining Companies in Ghana Dr. Clement Lamboi Arthur, 2018-06-07 Environmental economic and social sustainability management is one of the most complex challenges facing both private and public sector organizations in recent times This book is different from other accounting books in that unlike other texts on accounting it addresses the needs of variety of users Another way in which this book differs from other textbooks is that it is meant for an all accounting audiences who are interested in current issues in sustainability accounting and reporting of mining companies in Ghana It provides a good starting point for anyone wanting to embark on research in this area The book is meant to be easy to read so I apologize for including references and citations If I left them all out you would not know whether what I was saying was my personal opinion or had some authoritative evidence to back it up I have tried to minimize the references though consistent with the requirements of the need to evidence statements and give credit to innovative thinkers I hope I have made it very obvious when anything is just my personal opinion The content of this book is intended for practicing accounting and finance professionals graduate students and advanced undergraduate students The social and economic context of sustainability accounting is regularly brought into discussion and accounting like all business studies are social studies It is done by people about people to people It is not just about what things people own and what those things are worth United States Code United States,1982 Report Writing Rhonda Rhodes,2015-01-19 Employers continue to say that written and oral communication skills are the most important skills for employees This book presents the basics for writing any kind of report such as research reports proposals case studies business plans technical reports feasibility studies and more Both novice and experienced writers will benefit from the book Checklists are included to assist writers in perfecting their reports The book includes Organizing purpose types formats parts Starting planning researching referencing avoiding plagiarism Referencing basic steps reference management software citing sources using style manuals APA reference list avoiding plagiarism Writing objectivity conciseness coherence emphasis variety comprehensive Polishing abbreviations acronyms capitalization italics numbers punctuation spelling word division Producing fonts color paper layout graphics Finishing editing proofreading "Code of Massachusetts regulations, 2013" ,2013 Archival snapshot of entire looseleaf Code of Massachusetts Regulations held by the Social Law Library of Massachusetts as of January 2020 "Code of Massachusetts regulations, 2001" ,2001 Archival snapshot of entire looseleaf Code of Massachusetts Regulations held by the Social Law Library of Massachusetts as of January 2020 Guidelines for Report Writing Ronald S.
