FRANKENSTEIN

"I am going to unexplored regions to 'the land of mist and snow'; but I shall kill my acquaintances, therefore do not be alarmed for my safety, or if I should come back to you as worn and woeful as the 'Ancient Mariner.'" (Letter II)

What Robert Walton says here foreshadows his return when, like the "Ancient Mariner" he will come back with a tale that is just as strange. However, unlike the Mariner he promises that he will not kill one of God's creatures or harm anyone on this voyage.

"I shall satisfy my ardent curiosity with the sight of a part of the world never before visited, and may tread a land never before impressed by the foot of man." (Letter II)

Robert Walton is explaining to his sister that he is driven by an inner desire to explore parts of the world that are unknown and dangerous. This letter is a harbinger of Frankenstein's quest to explore the outermost edge of scientific creation.
