The Culture of Leadership in Contemporary China Paul Michael Linehan, 2017-12-06 The resurgence of Confucianism Daoism and Buddhism in the context of Chinese leadership values has emerged as a foundation for a new generation of leaders The once in a decade transition of China's leadership witnessed the ascendancy of a consensus oriented

fifth generation of leaders supporting a central authoritative figure whose priority will likely include the reconciliation of a waning communist ideology juxtaposed with its ostensible embrace of capitalism How will Chinese Communist Party authority ideology and control address the encroachment of Western values that are centered on Roman law Greek philosophy and Christian religion which prioritizes individual freedom and democracy This book examines the role of traditional Chinese values ideology and philosophy as a key determinant in modern China s leadership succession The author asserts that as communist ideology wanes Chinese leaders will turn to their own traditional values found in Confucianism Daoism and Buddhism to establish legitimacy to rule as they seek to promote Chinese prominence and greatness in the world The author s research assesses China s promotion of its own traditional values in rejecting foreign value influence Since the inception of modern China at the beginning of the 20th century China s leadership transition has evolved from an authoritarian cult like dictatorship to a consensus oriented process In researching this metamorphosis this book offers social political cultural and historical perspectives to demonstrate that Chinese human values and character factors have risen in prominence as key elements in the mandate of Chinese governance and leadership The author concludes that Chinese leadership values and its study and diffusion across sectors of Chinese leadership including business organizations and government have become a means to accentuate Chinese values as a viable alternative to Western claims of absolute and universally accepted values

Culture, Music Education, and the Chinese Dream in Mainland China Wai-Chung Ho, 2018-01-04 This book focuses on the rapidly changing sociology of music as manifested in Chinese society and Chinese education It examines how social changes and cultural politics affect how music is currently being used in connection with the Chinese dream While there is a growing trend toward incorporating the Chinese dream into school education and higher education there has been no scholarly discussion to date The combination of cultural politics transformed authority relations and officially approved songs can provide us with an understanding of the official content on the Chinese dream that is conveyed in today s Chinese society and how these factors have influenced the renewal of values based education and practices in school music education in China

Portrayals of Women in Early Twentieth-Century China Sandy Ng, 2025-10-01 Portrayals of Women in Early Twentieth Century China explores the role played by woman and their visual representations in introducing modern design and modern ways of living to China It investigates this through an analysis of how women and modern design were represented in the advertisements photographs and films of Republican era China This study explores the intersection of modernity and the Chinese woman as they negotiated their changing identities through and with new designs that proliferated in Chinese households in the first half of the twentieth century The advertisements mass media photographs and films took on the function of social conditioning conveying to the viewers ideas of modern social standards behavior and appearances With women both instrumentalised within these images and addressed through them their visual representations became metaphors that fashioned a new portrait of China while concurrently impacting on the identity agency and subjectivity of women themselves

The Chinese Space Programme in the Public Conversation

about Space Andrew Thomas, 2020-08-01 This study is the product of a long view of space exploration and the conversations about space in China. It locates the multiple conversations about space exploration and utilisation as they are in the Peoples Republic of China (PRC) within other conversations about space culture in the world. China is viewed by Western researchers through many lenses which are examined here critically. In previous studies, writers explain away China's space programme with the easy answers of a Space Race and a China Threat in which the space programme is seen as merely an example of global competition or threat, but this thesis challenges those barriers to Western understanding of the Chinese public conversation of space culture. In this study, critical theory and an underlying epistemology within a post-Enlightenment cultural frame are applied to official archival and ephemeral texts and images. The manner of the critical application is distinguished from derivative techniques operationalised as Open Source Intelligence. The concept of Place and within that Foucault's linguistic concept of Heterotopia is significant both in understanding the Chinese overseas space bases on Earth and the temporal and spatial dislocations experienced in space missions. In acknowledging the interpretative approach, an empirical study, a Q-sort has been carried out which demonstrates that the key factor in the Chinese conversation is Science within the context of modernisation, tempered by Chinese cultural affirmation and international co-operation. The thesis concludes by providing general principles in future work for successful research into the popular culture of space exploration.

The Art of Useless Calvin Hui, 2021-09-21 Since embarking on economic reforms in 1978, the People's Republic of China has also undergone a sweeping cultural reorganization from proletarian culture under Mao to middle class consumer culture today. Under these circumstances, how has a Chinese middle class come into being and how has consumerism become the dominant ideology of an avowedly socialist country? The Art of Useless offers an innovative way to understand China's unprecedented political, economic, social and cultural transformations, showing how consumer culture helps anticipate, produce and shape a new middle class subjectivity. Examining changing representations of the production and consumption of fashion in documentaries and films, Calvin Hui traces how culture contributes to China's changing social relations through the cultivation of new identities and sensibilities. He explores the commodity chain of fashion on a transnational scale from production to consumption to disposal, as well as media portrayals of the intersections of clothing with class, gender and ethnicity. Hui illuminates key cinematic narratives such as a factory worker's desire for a high quality suit in the 1960s, an intellectual's longing for fashionable clothes in the 1980s and a white collar woman's craving for brand name commodities in the 2000s. He considers how documentary films depict the undersides of consumption: exploited laborers who fantasize about the products they manufacture, as well as the accumulation of waste and its disposal, revealing how global capitalism renders migrant factory workers scavengers and garbage invisible. A highly interdisciplinary work that combines theoretical nuance with masterful close analyses, The Art of Useless is an innovative rethinking of the emergence of China's middle class.

consumer culture Routledge Handbook of Chinese Media Ming-Yeh T. Rawnsley, Yiben Ma, Gary D. Rawnsley, 2015-04-24

The study of Chinese media is a field that is growing and evolving at an exponential rate. Not only are the Chinese media a fascinating subject for analysis in their own right but they also offer scholars and students a window to observe multi-directional flows of information culture and communications within the contexts of globalization and regionalization. Moreover, the study of Chinese media provides an invaluable opportunity to test and refine the variety of communications theories that researchers have used to describe, analyse, compare and contrast systems of communications. The Routledge Handbook of Chinese Media is a prestigious reference work providing an overview of the study of Chinese media. Gary and Ming Yeh Rawnsley bring together an interdisciplinary perspective with contributions by an international team of renowned scholars on subjects such as television journalism and the internet and social media. Locating Chinese media within a regional setting by focusing on Greater China, the People's Republic of China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Macau, and overseas Chinese communities, the chapters highlight the convergence of media and platforms in the region and emphasise the multi-directional and transnational character of media information flows in East Asia. Contributing to the growing de-westernization of media and communications studies, this handbook is an essential and comprehensive reference work for students of all levels and scholars in the fields of Chinese Studies and Media Studies.
