

Identifying the Mutation

Analyze the following:

- Substitution mutation: the change of one nucleotide in a sequence resulting in a silent mutation that has no impact on the amino acid sequence. Caused by the fact that single nucleotide codons, or the deletion/insertion of nucleotides in a sequence, can code for the same amino acid.
- Insertion mutation: the addition of one or more nucleotides into a sequence.
- Deletion mutation: a chromosome rearrangement where a segment of a chromosome is removed and lost.
- Translocation: a chromosome rearrangement where a segment of a chromosome is moved to a different chromosome.
- Transposition: a segment of a chromosome is moved to a different location in the genome.
- Amplification: a gene is present in multiple copies in a cell.
- Point mutation: a mutation affecting only one or two nucleotides in a sequence.
- Indel mutation: a mutation that involves the insertion or deletion of one or more nucleotides in a sequence.
- Frameshift: a mutation caused by the insertion or deletion of a nucleotide in a sequence, which shifts the reading frame of the sequence.

Identify the type of mutation that caused the change in the sequence. Remember that insertion and deletion shifts subsequent amino acid sequences (frameshift), while substitution does not. Indel mutations also shift the reading frame.
