Chapter 3 Demand and Supply

3.1 Demand, Supply, and Equilibrium in Markets for Goods and Services

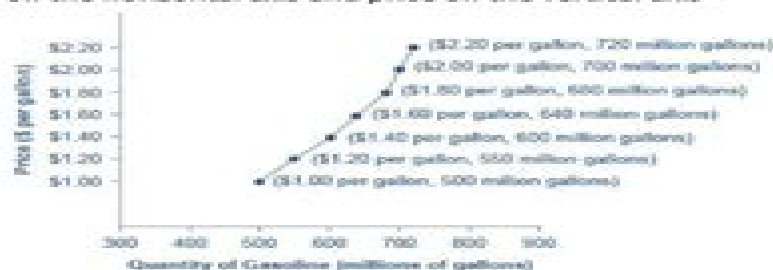

DEMAND

- demand: the amount of a good or service consumers are willing and able to pay
- price: what a buyer pays for a unit of the specific good or service
- quantity demanded: the total number of units of a good or service consumers are willing to purchase
- law of demand: the INVERSE relationship between price and quantity demanded of a certain good or service while all other variables are held constant.
 - Law of Demand: A lower price leads to a lower quantity demanded
- demand schedule: a table that shows the product demanded at each price
- demand curve: a graph showing the relationship between price and quantity demanded of a certain good or service, with quantity on the horizontal axis and the price on the vertical axis

SUPPLY

- supply: the amount of a good or service a producer is willing to supply at a certain price.
- law of supply: the common relationship between price and supply while all other variables are held constant
 - Law of Supply: A higher price leads to a higher quantity supplied
- supply schedule: a table showing quantity supplied a good or service at each price
- supply curve: a graph that shows the relationship between price and quantity, with quantity supply on the horizontal axis and price on the vertical axis
