

1. After estimating the simple linear model $(y_i = \beta_0 + \beta_1 x_i + \varepsilon_i)$ using the least squares method, which of the following is NOT true?
- the point \bar{X} , \bar{Y} always lies on the regression line.
 - the sum of the squared residuals is ≥ 0 .
 - the mean of the fitted values of Y is the same as the mean of the observed values of Y .
 - there are always as many points above the fitted line as there are below it.
2. In a simple regression, the quantity that gives the amount by which y changes for a unit change in x is called the:
- coefficient of determination
 - intercept of the regression line
 - slope of the regression line
 - correlation coefficient
3. A regression has been estimated for children between the ages of 18 months and 29 months, there is approximately a linear relationship between "height" and "age". The relationship can be represented by $\hat{y} = 64.93 + 0.63x$, where y represents height (in centimetres) and x represents age (in months). When Baby Joe was 2 years old and 30 centimetres tall, what was Joe's residual?

 - 0.05
 - 0.05
 - 56.6
4. R^2 is not the same as:
- the proportional change in y divided by the proportional change in x
 - the correlation between predicted y s and actual y s
 - the difference between the Total Sum of Squares and the Residual Sum of Squares divided by the Total Sum of Squares
 - the Explained Sum of Squares as a proportion of the Total Sum of Squares

Empirical Development Economics Måns Söderbom, Francis Teal, Markus Eberhardt, Simon Quinn, Andrew Zeitlin, 2014-10-03 Understanding why so many people across the world are so poor is one of the central intellectual challenges of our time This book provides the tools and data that will enable students researchers and professionals to address that issue Empirical Development Economics has been designed as a hands on teaching tool to investigate the causes of poverty The book begins by introducing the quantitative approach to development economics Each section uses data to illustrate key policy issues Part One focuses on the basics of understanding the role of education technology and institutions in determining why incomes differ so much across individuals and countries In Part Two the focus is on techniques to address a number of topics in development including how firms invest how households decide how much to spend on their children s education whether microcredit helps the poor whether food aid works who gets private schooling and whether property rights enhance investment A distinctive feature of the book is its presentation of a range of approaches to studying development questions Development economics has undergone a major change in focus over the last decade with the rise of experimental methods to address development issues this book shows how these methods relate to more traditional ones Please visit the book s website at www.empiricalde.com for online supplements including Stata files and solutions to the exercises

Machine Learning for Econometrics Christophe Gaillac, Jérémy L'Hour, 2025-05-05 Machine Learning for Econometrics is a book for economists seeking to grasp modern machine learning techniques from their predictive performance to the revolutionary handling of unstructured data in order to establish causal relationships from data The volume covers automatic variable selection in various high dimensional contexts estimation of treatment effect heterogeneity natural language processing NLP techniques as well as synthetic control and macroeconomic forecasting The foundations of machine learning methods are introduced to provide both a thorough theoretical treatment of how they can be used in econometrics and numerous economic applications and each chapter contains a series of empirical examples programs and exercises to facilitate the reader s adoption and implementation of the techniques

Theoretical and Empirical Exercises in Econometrics Nlandu Mamingi, 2005 This is a textbook designed for undergraduate and graduate students and is the result of the author s more than twenty years of involvement with econometrics as both teacher and researcher It contains theory problems and answers many of which have already been tested extensively in classrooms and tutorials and then refined for the book It includes the following topics single equation regressions dummy and limited dependent variable models simultaneous equations models dynamic regression models unit roots cointegration and error correction models aggregation over time issues forecasting and panel data models The book does not attempt to duplicate the many standard econometrics books Rather it supplements them by focusing exclusively on theoretical and empirical exercises in a systematic way Although much of the material has a Caribbean flavour its rigorous and clear presentation will appeal to students and teachers worldwide

Applied Health Economics Andrew M. Jones, Nigel Rice, Teresa Bago d'Uva, Silvia Balia, 2013-05-07 The first edition of Applied Health Economics did an expert job of showing how the availability of large scale data sets and the rapid advancement of advanced econometric techniques can help health economists and health professionals make sense of information better than ever before This second edition has been revised and updated throughout and includes a new chapter on the description and modelling of individual health care costs thus broadening the book's readership to those working on risk adjustment and health technology appraisal. The text also fully reflects the very latest advances in the health economics field and the key journal literature. Large scale survey datasets in particular complex survey designs such as panel data provide a rich source of information for health economists. They offer the scope to control for individual heterogeneity and to model the dynamics of individual behaviour. However the measures of outcome used in health economics are often qualitative or categorical. These create special problems for estimating econometric models. The dramatic growth in computing power over recent years has been accompanied by the development of methods that help to solve these problems. The purpose of this book is to provide a practical guide to the skills required to put these techniques into practice. Practical applications of the methods are illustrated using data on health from the British Health and Lifestyle Survey (HALS), the British Household Panel Survey (BHPS), the European Community Household Panel (ECHP), the US Medical Expenditure Panel Survey (MEPS) and Survey of Health Ageing and Retirement in Europe (SHARE). There is a strong emphasis on applied work illustrating the use of relevant computer software with code provided for Stata. Familiarity with the basic syntax and structure of Stata is assumed. The Stata code and extracts from the statistical output are embedded directly in the main text and explained at regular intervals. The book is built around empirical case studies rather than general theory and the emphasis is on learning by example. It presents a detailed dissection of methods and results of some recent research papers written by the authors and their colleagues. Relevant methods are presented alongside the Stata code that can be used to implement them and the empirical results are discussed at each stage. This text brings together the theory and application of health economics and econometrics and will be a valuable reference for applied economists and students of health economics and applied econometrics.

The composition of portfolios is one of the most fundamental and important methods in financial engineering used to control the risk of investments. This book provides a comprehensive overview of statistical inference for portfolios and their various applications. A variety of asset processes are introduced including non-Gaussian stationary processes, nonlinear processes, non-stationary processes, and the book provides a framework for statistical inference using local asymptotic normality (LAN). The approach is generalized for portfolio estimation so that many important problems can be covered. This book can primarily be used as a reference by researchers from statistics, mathematics, finance, econometrics, and genomics. It can also be used as a textbook by senior undergraduate and graduate students in these fields.
