

⚠ WARNING

Use the proper length of pipes to avoid stress on the gas control manifold. A failure to follow this warning could result in a gas leak resulting in a fire, explosion, personal injury, or death.

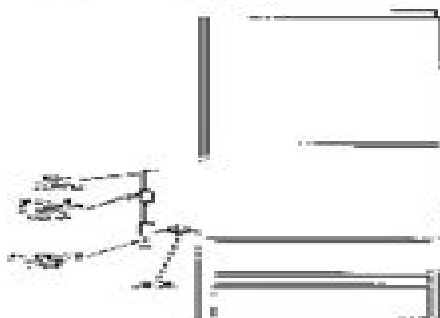

Fig. 6—Typical Piping

Piping should be pressure-tested in accordance with local and national plumbing and gas codes before the furnace has been installed. If the pressure exceeds 0.5 psig (1.4-in. wc), the gas supply pipe must be disconnected from the furnace and capped before the pressure test. If the test pressure is equal to or less than 0.5 psig (1.4-in. wc), close the manual shut-off valve located on the gas valve before the test. It is recommended that the ground joint union be loosened before pressure testing.

⚠ CAUTION

Use a backup wrench when connecting the gas pipe to the furnace to avoid damaging gas controls.

After all connections have been made, purge the lines and check for leakage.

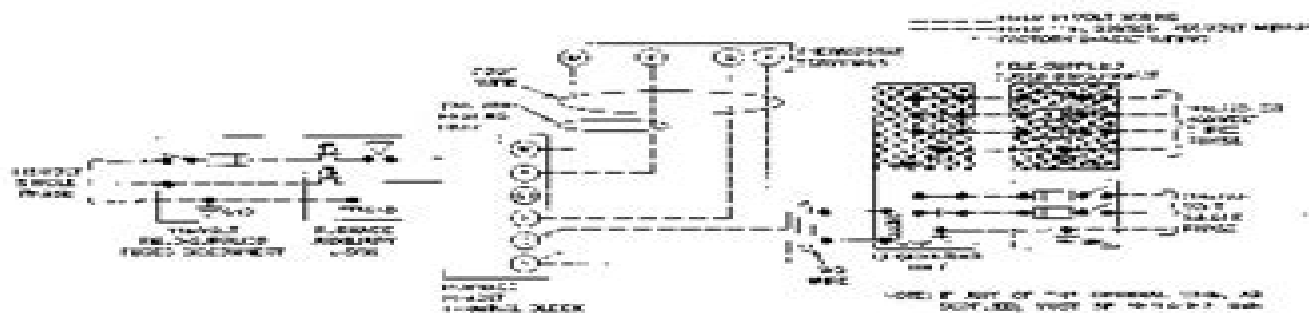

Fig. 7—Heating and Cooling Application Wiring Diagram

⚠ WARNING

Never purge a line into a combustion chamber. Never use matches, candles, flares, or other sources of ignition for the purpose of checking leakage. Use a soap-and-water solution to check for leakage. A failure to follow this warning could result in a fire, explosion, personal injury, or death.

V. ELECTRICAL CONNECTIONS

See Fig. 7 for a wiring diagram showing the proper 115- and 24-volt wiring. Check all electrical connections (both factory and field) for tightness.

A. 115-Volt Wiring

Before proceeding with the electrical connections, make certain that voltage, frequency, and phase correspond to that specified on the data rating plate. Also, check to be sure that the service provided by the utility is sufficient to handle the load imposed by this equipment. Refer to rating plate or to Table 5 for the equipment electrical specifications.

Table 5—Electrical Data

†Three-wire fuse is recommended.

†Length shown is as measured one way along with path between unit and service panel for a full 240-volt voltage drop.

⚠ CAUTION

Do not connect aluminum wire between the disconnect switch and the furnace. Use only copper wire.

Make all electrical connections in accordance with the National Electrical Code (NFPA 70-1967) and any local codes or ordinances that might apply.
