Perceiving in Depth, Volume 2: Stereoscopic Vision Ian P. Howard, Brian J. Rogers, 2012-01-27 The three volume work Perceiving in Depth is a sequel to Binocular Vision and Stereopsis and to Seeing in Depth both by Ian P Howard and Brian J Rogers This work is much broader in scope than the previous books and includes mechanisms of depth perception by all senses including aural electrosensory organs and the somatosensory system Volume 1 reviews sensory coding psychophysical and analytic procedures and basic visual mechanisms Volume 2 reviews stereoscopic vision Volume 3 reviews all mechanisms of depth perception other than stereoscopic vision The three volumes are extensively illustrated and referenced and provide the most detailed review of all aspects of perceiving the three dimensional world Volume 2 addresses stereoscopic vision in cats and primates including humans It begins with an account of the physiology of stereoscopic mechanisms It then deals with binocular rivalry binocular summation binocular masking and the interocular transfer of visual effects such as the motion aftereffect and visual learning The geometry of the region in binocular space that creates fused images the horopter is discussed in some detail Objects outside the horopter produce images with binocular disparities that are used for stereoscopic vision Two chapters provide accounts of mechanisms that bring the images into binocular register and of stimulus tokens that are used to detect binocular disparities Another chapter discusses cyclopean effects such as cyclopean illusions cyclopean motion and binocular direction that are seen only with binocular vision Stereoacuity is the smallest depth interval that can be detected Methods of measuring stereoacuity and factors that influence it are discussed Two chapters deal with the various types of binocular disparity and the role of each type in stereoscopic vision Another chapter deals with visual effects such as figure perception motion perception and whiteness perception that are affected by the relative distances of stimuli The spatiotemporal aspects of stereoscopic vision including the Pulfrich stereomotion effect are reviewed The volume ends with an account of techniques used to create stereoscopic displays and of the applications of stereoscopy

Climate, Earth Processes and Earth History Richard J. Huggett, 2012-12-06 Today climate related processes and problems are referred to as Global Change by nearly everyone including scientists politicians and economists citizens worldwide are anxious about the often observed disorientation of our environment under the influence of man Better information on the Earth's natural systems and their possible alterations is necessary The topic itself is so wide that sound scientific descriptions of it as a whole are rare For the non specialist information from relevant fields is not easy to obtain and often the prognostic models presented are contradictory and even for specialists difficult to evaluate Therefore this book on Climate Earth Processes and Earth History by Richard Huggett fills an important gap It discusses the great climate related areas of the Earth's environment The atmosphere the hydrosphere the sediments as products of weathering and geomorphic processes the relief as landforms and soils and the biosphere are thoroughly treated as the prominent subsystems which are greatly affected by climate These subsystems not only control the visual and internal aspects of our landscapes but they are themselves especially influenced by climatic changes which can be due to either changes in the natural system or anthropogenic changes Thus our landscapes will be subject to significant alterations if climatic variations exceed certain thresholds The plan for the present book by Richard Huggett was originally discussed in regard to the Springer Series on Physical Environment

Cities, Agglomeration, and Spatial Equilibrium Edward L. Glaeser, 2008-07-03 220 million Americans crowd together in the 3% of the country that is urban 35 million people live in the vast metropolis of Tokyo the most productive urban area in the world The central city of Mumbai alone has 12 million people and Shanghai almost as many We choose to live cheek by jowl in a planet with vast amounts of space Yet despite all of the land available to us we choose to live in proximity to cities Using economics to understand this phenomenon the urban economist uses the tools of economic theory and empirical data to explain why cities exist and to analyze urban issues such as housing education crime poverty and social interaction Drawing on the success of his Lindahl lectures Edward Glaeser provides a rigorous account of his research and unique thinking on cities Using a series of simple models and economic theory Glaeser illustrates the primary features of urban economics including the concepts of spatial equilibrium and agglomeration economies Written for a mathematically inclined audience with an interest in urban economics and cities the book is written to be accessible to theorists and non theorists alike and should provide a basis for further empirical work
