Silent Epidemic Plagues Thousands of Americans

As we eat, our bodies convert food into a substance called glucose, which is used to fuel cells. If a person's glucose level is too low (less than 60 mg/dL), the cells won't have enough energy to function properly. Hypoglycemia is a metabolic disorder characterized by low blood sugar (glucose) levels. Reactive hypoglycemia (also called postprandial hypoglycemia) refers to recurrent episodes of hypoglycemia within three hours of a high-carbohydrate meal in people who do not have diabetes. In many cases, following full-blown diabetes is precise, a person will experience a number of hours of hypoglycemia.

One major problem for diabetics taking either insulin or oral antidiabetic medications is recurrent bouts of hypoglycemia caused by the medication itself.

This has been associated with a number of health problems, including memory loss, dementia, depression, cardiac problems, seizures, and autoimmune dysregulation.

The pathological and health effects related to this type of medicine-induced hypoglycemia are essentially the same as reactive hypoglycemia, though in most cases reactive hypoglycemia is not as severe.

Over the years, I have written about reactive hypoglycemia in connection with a number of health problems. In this month's issue of The Blaylock Wellness Report, I will delve deeper into this condition, which is one of the most common health disorders we face, and is rapidly increasing, mainly because of massive ingestion of sugar and high-glucose foods and drinks.

Doctors Following Establishment Mythology

Reactive hypoglycemia can actually indicate many other conditions, including:

- Heart attack
- Stroke
- Trauma
- Neurological conditions

It can also greatly worsen a number of medical conditions, especially neurological disorders and diseases. For example, it is almost impossible to

With the discoveries of DNA telomeres telomerase activators and stem cell therapy that will create significant alterations to conventional medical procedures we are facing many drastic changes completely unknown to the general public. Science has ushered in these and other changes which most would agree as being coincidental with improvements and progress along with optimism and hope for our medical world. For instance this statement Type 2 diabetes can be one of the most easily prevented controlled and reversible medical conditions would be considered completely irresponsible and untrue by some. Likewise another example stating that one of the many causes of Alzheimer s can be traced to several nutritional deficiencies would be denied by some Continuing there are some who say there is no need for nutritional supplements if you eat your daily requirements of fruits and vegetables Explore the answers to these statements and other controversies as you read on Seeing New Horizons
