Blinded By Humanity Inside The UN Humanitarian Operations:

Blinded by Humanity Martin Barber, 2014-10-29 Martin Barber was a senior UN official and has extensive experience in humanitarian affairs and peace operations both at UN Headquarters and in the field. His last UN post before retirement was as Director of the United Nations Mine Action Service UNMAS at UN Headquarters in New York from 2000 until 2005. Previous UN assignments include Chief of Policy Development in the Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs OCHA, Deputy Special Representative in Bosnia Herzegovina and Humanitarian Coordinator in Afghanistan. He is now a consultant and analyst working on humanitarian issues and an Honorary Fellow of the University of Edinburgh. Blinded by Humanity Martin John Philip Barber, 2014. How to respond effectively to humanitarian crises is one of the most pressing and seemingly intractable problems facing the United Nations. Martin Barber, for many years a senior UN official and with decades of humanitarian experience, here argues that the explanation for UN failures or only partial successes lies not with any lack of idealism or good intentions but with the constraints placed on aid workers by ill-considered policies and poor practical application. Officials are blinded by humanity. Barber presents an inside story based on personal hands-on practical experience in Laos, Thailand, Afghanistan, Bosnia Herzegovina, and finally in Abu Dhabi where he advised the UAE government on its aid programme. He tells of internal struggles at head office and the challenges of working in the field. All the major UN activities and headaches are here, including refugee work, coordinating humanitarian aid, peacekeeping, the huge problem of de-mining, and the complex internal workings of the UN Secretariat. A personal narrative and lessons drawn from direct experience provide the frame for an examination of major questions concerning the future of humanitarian response: how effectively have international institutions discharged their responsibilities towards people affected by conflict? Specifically, how did the UN perform? And how might the UN better help such people in the 21st century? Barber analyses recent policy developments intended to improve the quality and effectiveness of the UN's work in humanitarian fields and assesses the extent to which recent reforms are likely to make the UN a more effective partner for countries emerging from conflict. In the final chapter, he highlights seven blind spots whose significance has been consistently ignored or overlooked and, in each case, suggests a radical new approach. Based on decades of personal experience and insider access, this will be essential reading for students of international relations and politics as well as for all those directly or indirectly involved with humanitarian issues. Bloomsbury Publishing. Linking Mine Action and SSR through Human Security Ursign Hofmann, Gianluca Maspoli, Åsa Massleberg, Pascal Rapillard, 2016-05-04. Security sector reform (SSR) and mine action share a strong common conceptual basis which draws from a shared understanding of security. They both reflect a conceptualization of security that is not limited to the level of the state but takes into account security threats and needs at societal and individual levels. This common basis provides opportunities for synergies between SSR and mine action. However, empirical evidence demonstrates that the strong conceptual basis is not fully reflected in concrete activities and the linkages remain limited and underexplored Despite this gap there are positive examples showing the potential for synergies between SSR and mine action Ultimately this paper maintains that the concept of human security provides a comprehensive framework which can bridge the differences and open broader opportunities for cooperation which in turn will increase the impact of interventions in SSR and mine action

Genocide of Rwandan Tutsi 1994 Laurence Binet, 2014-04-02 The Genocide of Rwandan Tutsis 1994 case study is describing the difficulties and dilemmas met by Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF) during the genocide of Rwandan Tutsis in April May and June 1994 The killings occurred in spite of the presence of UN troops in Rwanda and the members of the UN Security Council were slow to call the Tutsi extermination genocide hence evading the obligation to intervene and stop the slaughter as stipulated by international law MSF met with government officials and issued public statements to try to mobilise governments out of their inertia eventually calling to an international armed intervention These statements and actions resulted from numerous debates conflicts and contradictory interpretations of the Rwandan situation and of MSF's role addressing the following dilemmas Was it acceptable for a humanitarian organisation to remain silent when confronted with genocide or on the contrary to call for armed intervention an action that would lead to loss of human life Could MSF call on UN member states to pursue other means of action thereby risking giving legitimacy to ineffective responses given the nature of genocide Launched just as France proposed to intervene in Rwanda was there a risk that MSF's appeal for armed intervention would be appropriated for political gain

War crimes and politics of terror in Chechnya 1994-2004 Laurence Binet, 2016-06-02 The War crimes and politics of terror in Chechnya 1994-2004 case study describes the constraints questions and dilemmas experienced by MSF while speaking out during the two Russian Chechen wars and the following years of normalization Was speaking out the right thing to do with regard to Russia a power with a veto at the UN Security Council and a tradition of propaganda control of the public arena Was it realistic to rely on raising the awareness of other UN member states via their public opinion In a context of terror when dealing with a regime in denial of the reality of a conflict was it useful and was it up to MSF to call for having this situation qualified as war Should MSF take into account the possibility of a causal link between instances of its public speaking out and the security incidents involving its staff When one of its staff members was taken hostage should MSF speak out in the media to create visibility that affords him/her some protection or conversely remain as discrete as possible so as to avoid a rise in his/her market value Should MSF publically point out responsibilities negligence or even complicity of the government on which soil the kidnapping had occurred thereby taking active steps to secure the hostage's release or should it refrain from such a discourse so as to avoid the opposite effect Should MSF continue to publically denounce the violence inflicted on
