City Of South Sydney Council:

Strategy for a Sustainable City of South Sydney South Sydney (N.S.W.). Council,198? Queerying Planning

Petra L. Doan,2016-05-23 Current planning practices have largely neglected the needs of the Lesbian Gay Bisexual and Transgender LGBT community for safe urban spaces in which to live work and play This volume fills the gap in the literature on the planning and development of queer spaces and highlights some of the resistance within the planning profession to incorporate gay and lesbian concerns into the planning mainstream Planning lags behind other disciplines concerned with queer urban issues In contrast the field of geography has developed a rich sub specialty in the geographies of sex and gender that examines spaces and the variety of non heteronormative populations that inhabit them This volume brings together both planners and geographers with experience in planning to examine some of the fundamental assumptions of urban planning as they relate to the LGBT community The first few chapters are substantial revisions and expansions of earlier influential work on planning for non conformist populations and the preservation of LGBT neighborhoods Subsequent chapters comprise original contributions that draw on the rich literature from queer theory planning theory and the geography of sexualities to explore the ways that nonconformist populations struggle with heteronormative expectations embedded in planning theory and procedures These chapters consider the intersection of planning and a range of populations including transgendered and gender variant individuals Subsequent chapters examine the ways that variations in the scale of urban and regional governance influence local politics around the implementation of more equitable policies at the city level In addition several chapters critically examine the implications of using the tolerance component of Richard Florida's creative cities arguments The final section consists of two chapters that explore the ways that urban planning regimes have been used to regulate sexually oriented businesses and the way this regulation of sexualized spaces has implications on the heteronormativity of plans and planners In summary these chapters interrogate planning practice and pose questions for academic and professional planners about the ways that the queer community and its needs for spaces have shifted What do those changes mean for the practice of planning 40 years after the North American Stonewall rebellion and looking forward to the next 40 years To what extent does existing planning practice constrain the evolution of queer communities or seek to commercialize such spaces to the benefit of large developers and the detriment of marginalized members of the community How might planning practice change to provide more direct support to the evolution of queer people and the spaces in which they live This volume draws on these insights as well as the experiences of the various authors to lay out possible future directions for the field of planning to create truly inclusive urban areas

Putting Fear of Crime on the Map Bruce J. Doran,Melissa B. Burgess,2011-09-21 Since first emerging as an issue of concern in the late 1960s fear of crime has become one of the most researched topics in contemporary criminology and receives considerable attention in a range of other disciplines including social ecology social psychology and geography Researchers looking the subject have consistently uncovered alarming characteristics primarily relating to the behavioural responses that people adopt in relation to their fear of crime This book reports on research conducted over the past eight years in which efforts have been made to pioneer the combination of techniques from behavioural geography with Geographic Information Systems GIS in order to map the fear of crime The first part of the book outlines the history of research into fear of crime with an emphasis on the many approaches that have been used to investigate the problem and the need for a spatially explicit approach The second part provides a technical break down of the GIS based techniques used to map fear of crime and summarises key findings from two separate study sites The authors describe collective avoidance behaviour in relation to disorder decline models such as the Broken Windows Thesis the potential to integrate fear mapping with police community partnerships and emerging avenues for further research Issues discussed include fear of crime in relation to housing prices and disorder the use of fear mapping as a means with which to monitor the impact of Closed Circuit Television CCTV and fear mapping in transit environments
