Autism Steven Hyman, 2013-10-08 First published in 2001 This is Volume 2 in a series on the science of mental health and focuses on Autism It begins with an overview presentation of a case and a recent consensus description of diagnostic instruments for autistic spectrum disorders This is followed by recent epidemiologic data Epidemiology has an enhanced prominence in studies of autism because there is an unresolved controversy about the incidence of new cases of autism In some surveys the incidence of autism appears to be increasing and the controversy is over whether this is a true observation or whether greater diagnostic awareness is leading to the apparent increase This volume attempt to resolve the conflicting data as if autism is indeed on the rise there must be a new significant environmental risk factor which has to be identified with a view to prevention

Growing up with Alcohol Emma Fossey,2005-06-28 The use and misuse of alcohol by young people is an established concern Initiatives designed to educate the young about the potential dangers of alcohol are frequently directed solely at teenagers Growing up with Alcohol argues that this may be leaving it too late Emma Fossey presents a detailed account of a study of children aged between five and ten years carried out through a series of ingenious game like activities

She explodes the myth that young children are ignorant about alcohol and provides valuable insights about how very young children learn about alcohol and about their early perceptions of alcohol The study questions the effectiveness of past alcohol education and argues strongly that future initiatives should develop innovative and user friendly alcohol education materials for use in primary as well as in secondary schools and colleges Child Psychology and Psychiatry David H.
