Week 1 - introduction to chemistry

Two classifications for everything → matter & energy

- a. Matter = solid, liquid, gas
- b. Energy = kinetic and potential

Hypothesis, laws and theories

Mixtures

- a. Homogeneous = uniform all the way through, each substance is evenly distributed
 - i. Ex: salt water
- b. Heterogenous = two distinctly different portions in a mixture, two diff substances will not mix; often occurs when one is soluble and one is not, or one is polar and one is not
 - i. Ex: oil and water

Physical & chemical Properties

- a. Physical = What something looks like and other physical properties → color, odor, mass
- b. Chemical = how things will change in a reaction → boiling point, conductivity, etc.

Intensive & extensive properties

- a. Intensive: does not depend on how much of the substance is present
 - i. Ex: color, density
- b. Extensive: does depend on how much of the substance is present
 - i. Ex: mass, volume

Changes matter can go through

- a. Physical change- bonds remain intact, will change in appearance but not composition
- b. Chemical change- bonds are broken and possibly reformed, a new substance is formed

Other topics to know for week 1:

- Sig figs, conversions, those old men and what they discovered

Week 2- the basics of atoms and molecules and their discovery

The periodic table:

Metals:

- a. Left side of the periodic table

Metalloids:

- a. Middle

Non-metals:

- a. Right

Types of compounds:

- a. Ionic compound = metal + nonmetal
- b. Ionic compound = polyatomic ion + non-metal

Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something a level approaching large scale impact By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i e extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in between straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation
