Modeling Biological Systems James W. Haefner, 2012-12-06 This book is intended as a text for a first course on creating and analyzing computer simulation models of biological systems The expected audience for this book are students wishing to use dynamic models to interpret real data much as they would use standard statistical techniques It is meant to provide both the essential principles as well as the details and equations applicable to a few particular systems and subdisciplines Biological systems however encompass a vast diverse array of topics and problems This book discusses only a select number of these that I have found to be useful and interesting to biologists just beginning their appreciation of computer simulation The examples chosen span classical mathematical models of well studied systems to state of the art topics such as cellular automata and artificial life I have stressed the relationship between the models and the biology over mathematical analysis in order to give the reader a sense that mathematical models really are useful to biologists In this light I have sought examples that address fundamental and I think interesting biological questions Almost all of the models are directly compared to quantitative data to provide at least a partial demonstration that some biological models can accurately predict

Mixed Integer Nonlinear Programming Jon Lee, Sven Leyffer, 2011-12-02 Many engineering operations and scientific applications include a mixture of discrete and continuous decision variables and nonlinear relationships involving the decision variables that have a pronounced effect on the set of feasible and optimal solutions Mixed integer nonlinear programming MINLP problems combine the numerical difficulties of handling nonlinear functions with the challenge of optimizing in the context of nonconvex functions and discrete variables MINLP is one of the most flexible modeling paradigms available for optimization but because its scope is so broad in the most general cases it is hopelessly intractable Nonetheless an expanding body of researchers and practitioners including chemical engineers operations researchers industrial engineers mechanical engineers economists statisticians computer scientists operations managers and mathematical programmers are interested in solving large scale MINLP instances
