Practical Strategies for Applied Budgeting and Fiscal Administration Spencer C. Weiler, Gabriel R.

Serna, 2016-07-18 This book takes an applied approach to budgeting and fiscal administration in P 12 public education. It presents new and aspiring P 12 educational leaders with the fundamental knowledge and skills to supervise, analyze, and implement budgets that make the best and most effective use of limited resources. By exploring the foundational elements of fiscal administration and outlining the process step by step, this text carefully takes leaders through real world examples and includes myriad opportunities for application. Indeed, a major goal of this text is to provide readers with a set of technical skills that can be applied across a range of contexts. Our expectation is that current and future P 12 budget managers and educational leaders will find this text invaluable in their day to day work and that the material presented here will help them engage in fruitful decisions around the allocation of scarce resources. Budgeting is the Answer Joe Shoemaker, 1977

National Defense Budgeting and Financial Management Philip J. Candreva, 2024-01-01 Budgeting for national defense is a complex endeavor, particularly for a nation like the U.S. that assumes global responsibility and strives to have the most advanced and lethal force on earth. It is necessary and challenging to balance the myriad requirements between current and future readiness across warfare areas and military services between having state-of-the-art capability with sufficient capacity and among people, hardware, and the activities people do with that hardware. As analytically difficult as that problem is, it is embedded in the political budgeting processes, and national security must be balanced with every other function of government, and there must also be cooperation across branches of government. This text explores that complex endeavor. It takes the position that budgeting for defense is a particular instance of public budgeting, which is a particular instance of public policy. Thus, this text starts with a conceptual, empirical, and process foundation before discussing the participants and processes that build the annual defense budget. It then covers the execution of that budget and the ultimate accounting. Compared to the first edition, this text is updated with current figures and examples. There is a new chapter on determinants of military spending in society and burden sharing within alliances. The chapter on budget execution has been disaggregated, and a new chapter is devoted to fiscal law. The final chapter seeks to integrate all that came before it by discussing matters that integrate the stages of budgeting and which cross branches of government. Following in the tradition of the first edition, this is intended to be both a textbook for a course in budgeting but also a desktop reference for defense budgeting practitioners.
