Svengalis, Rhode Island Law Press, 2008 What's In, What's Out Amanda Glassman, Ursula Giedion, Peter C. Smith, 2017-10-10 Vaccinate children against deadly pneumococcal disease or pay for cardiac patients to undergo lifesaving surgery Cover the costs of dialysis for kidney patients or channel the money toward preventing the conditions that lead to renal failure in the first place Policymakers dealing with the realities of limited health care budgets face tough decisions like these regularly And for many individuals their personal health care choices are equally stark paying for medical treatment could push them into poverty Many low and middle income countries now aspire to universal health coverage where governments ensure that all people have access to the quality health services they need without risk of impoverishment But for universal health coverage to become reality the health services offered must be consistent with the funds available and this implies tough everyday choices for policymakers that could be the difference between life and death for those affected by any given condition or disease The situation is particularly acute in low and middle income countries where public spending on health is on the rise but still extremely low and where demand for expanded services is growing rapidly What's In, What's Out Designing Benefits for Universal Health Coverage argues that the creation of an explicit health benefits plan a defined

Mansoor Malik,Kim Walker ,Kristina R. Weeks,Tanvi Bafna ,Mohua Chakraborty Choudhury,2025-10-09 Healthcare workers burnout is a global issue COVID 19 pandemic had a significantly negative effect on the morale and resilience of healthcare workers High rates of depression anxiety and PTSD have been well documented across the globe for healthcare workers contributing to high turnover and attrition rates Occupational burnout not only affects the healthcare workers but is also detrimental to patient safety and organizational productivity Burnout should be seen as a continuum ranging from job dissatisfaction to psychiatric morbidity It is important to educate health professionals and employ primary and secondary preventative strategies at every stage of burnout for the optimal functioning of healthcare systems Although numerous observational studies highlight high rates of burnout among healthcare workers there has been little research to demonstrate effectiveness of interventions to support mental well being of healthcare workers during stressful times Investigation of potential resilience building interventions is especially important to prepare for the next pandemic or large scale disaster In addition robust evidence based guidelines and best practices are needed to reduce the high rates of burnout and promote wellbeing in healthcare workforce by integrating and addressing the full spectrum of occupational organizational social personal and psychological factors There are significant gaps in the existing literature including lack of prospective longitudinal intervention studies research focusing the needs of minority healthcare workers and identifying barriers to promote institutional wellbeing culture The United States Catalog ,1924 Energy Research Abstracts ,1985
