

Intermediate CSS interview questions and answers to ask mid-tier developers

How would you create a responsive layout that changes from a single column on mobile to three columns on desktop without using media queries?

A skilled candidate should explain that this can be achieved using CSS Grid or Flexbox with percentage-based widths. Here's how they might describe the approach:

- Use CSS Grid with `grid-template-columns: repeat(auto-fit, minmax(300px, 1fr));`

- This creates as many columns as can fit, with a minimum width of 300px and expanding to fill available space
- On mobile, this naturally creates a single column, while on desktop it forms multiple columns

Look for candidates who demonstrate understanding of modern CSS layout techniques and can explain how they adapt to different screen sizes without explicit breakpoints.
