Cross Language Information Retrieval Jian Yun Nie:

Cross-Language Information Retrieval Jian-Yun Nie, 2010-05-05 Search for information is no longer exclusively limited within the native language of the user but is more and more extended to other languages This gives rise to the problem of cross language information retrieval CLIR whose goal is to find relevant information written in a different language to a query In addition to the problems of monolingual information retrieval IR translation is the key problem in CLIR one should translate either the query or the documents from a language to another However this translation problem is not identical to full text machine translation MT the goal is not to produce a human readable translation but a translation suitable for finding relevant documents Specific translation methods are thus required The goal of this book is to provide a comprehensive description of the specific problems arising in CLIR the solutions proposed in this area as well as the remaining problems The book starts with a general description of the monolingual IR and CLIR problems Different classes of approaches to translation are then presented approaches using an MT system dictionary based translation and approaches based on parallel and comparable corpora In addition the typical retrieval effectiveness using different approaches is compared It will be shown that translation approaches specifically designed for CLIR can rival and outperform high quality MT systems Finally the book offers a look into the future that draws a strong parallel between query expansion in monolingual IR and query translation in CLIR suggesting that many approaches developed in monolingual IR can be adapted to CLIR The book can be used as an introduction to CLIR Advanced readers can also find more technical details and discussions about the remaining research challenges in the future It is suitable to new researchers who intend to carry out research on CLIR Table of Contents Preface Introduction Using Manually Constructed Translation Systems and Resources for CLIR Translation Based on Parallel and Comparable Corpora Other Methods to Improve CLIR A Look into the Future Toward a Unified View of Monolingual IR and CLIR References Author Biography Routledge Encyclopedia of Translation

Technology Chan Sin-wai, 2014-11-13 The Routledge Encyclopedia of Translation Technology provides a state of the art survey of the field of computer assisted translation It is the first definitive reference to provide a comprehensive overview of the general regional and topical aspects of this increasingly significant area of study The Encyclopedia is divided into three parts Part One presents general issues in translation technology such as its history and development translator training and various aspects of machine translation including a valuable case study of its teaching at a major university Part Two discusses national and regional developments in translation technology offering contributions covering the crucial territories of China Canada France Hong Kong Japan South Africa Taiwan the Netherlands and Belgium the United Kingdom and the United States Part Three evaluates specific matters in translation technology with entries focused on subjects such as alignment bitext computational lexicography corpus editing online translation subtitling and technology and translation management systems The Routledge Encyclopedia of Translation Technology draws on the expertise of over fifty contributors from around the world and an international panel of consultant editors to provide a selection of articles on the most pertinent topics in the discipline. All the articles are self contained, extensively cross referenced and include useful and up to date references and information for further reading. It will be an invaluable reference work for anyone with a professional or academic interest in the subject. Web Intelligence Ning Zhong, Jiming Liu, Yiyu Yao, 2013-06-29. This book is the first coherently written multi author monograph on Web Intelligence. It offers a thorough introduction and a systematic overview of the new field. It reflects the current state of the research and development in various areas of WI as well as theoretical and application aspects of WI and Web based intelligent information systems and services. It highlights several promising WI topics which will impact on the development of the ultimate Wisdom Web. The book contains one introductory paper and 19 survey research papers. The papers are structured into six parts: Web agents, Web mining and farming, Web information retrieval, Web knowledge management, the infrastructure for Web intelligent systems and social network intelligence. We conceived and coined the notion Web Intelligence in late 1999. Back then although there was a variety of Web or Internet related conferences, journals and books, none was devoted to the intelligence aspects of Web information systems and services. It was felt that there was a need for a conference, a journal and or books for researchers, scientists and industry practitioners who wanted to publish and exchange ideas on Web Intelligence. At the 24th Annual International Computer Software and Applications Conference IEEE COMPSAC in 2000 we first introduced Web Intelligence. In 2001 the first Web Intelligence conference WI 2001 <http://kis.maebashi.it.ac.jp/wi01/> was successfully held in Maebashi, Japan.

Lexicography is a realm of growing academic specialization. Dictionaries map meaning onto use. We have innumerable dictionaries on different subjects and for different purposes which we keep referring to time and again. Despite the frequency with which dictionaries are unquestioningly consulted, many have little idea of what actually goes into making them or how meanings are definitively ascertained. We have become so accustomed to using dictionaries that we fail to take notice of the effort and time spent in their making. Understanding the finer nuances of the art of dictionary making will be of interest to everyone. With changing times and the penetration of technology, the bulkier forms of dictionaries have given way to softer forms. This book updates the reader to the changing notions of the lexicon and dictionary making in the new realm of modern technology and newer electronic tools. The book introduces us to lexicography and leads us to dictionaries for general and specific purposes. It examines dictionary compilation and research and enables compilers, users, educators and publishers to look anew at the art of lexicography It duly takes into account the fact that dictionaries are meant to fulfill the needs of specific user groups and reflects the same in the chapters devoted to various professional dictionaries which have recently achieved widespread recognition in the lexicographical literature A good read for students of linguistics teachers and translators apart from general readers interested in knowing the intricate art of making a dictionary
