

Choices: Exploring Parts of Speech

The following activities challenge you to find a connection between the parts of speech and the world around you. Do the activity below that suits your personality best, and then share your discoveries with your class.

TIME LINE

A First Time for Everything

What is the history of each part of speech? Make a time line showing when the terms noun, pronoun, adjective, verb, adverb, preposition, conjunction, and interjection were first used in English. (HINT: Look in the Oxford English Dictionary.) Then, with your teacher's approval, post your time line in the classroom.

RESEARCH

Deep Roots

Look up the etymologies of the parts of speech—noun, pronoun, adjective, verb, adverb, preposition, conjunction, and interjection. Name the root words of each term, and give your classmates a brief explanation of each.

VISUAL PRESENTATION

The Ins and Outs

Create a Venn diagram showing the relationships between transitive and intransitive verbs and action and linking verbs. Include example sentences for each section of the diagram. Explain the diagram so that everyone understands. Write several additional examples of verbs in sentences on the chalkboard, and help your classmates place them correctly in your diagram.

CREATIVE WRITING

Metamorphosing Metaphors

Write a poem composed mostly of words that can function as different parts of speech. Use each of these words as at least two parts of speech or even more, if you can!

ETYMOLOGY

Star Quality

Is grammar glamorous? Don't answer yet. First, look up the definition of the word glamour, and then decide. Next, write a short report detailing your findings and give copies to your classmates.

DRAMA

Shorthand

Compose a dialogue between two or more people. Here's the catch: Use only two parts of speech—any two you like. Tell your classmates to sit back and enjoy the show.

CREATIVE WRITING

A Household Word

Wouldn't it be great to have a word based on you or your name enter the English language? If there were a word based on your name, what would it be? What would its part of speech be? Write a story about how this word came into being.

CONTEST

Chameleon Conjunctions

Have a contest: Who can find a word that can function as the most parts of speech? The winner must present complete sentences appropriately using his or her word as each part of speech.

WORLD LANGUAGES

When in Rome

In today's world, many people speak more than one language. Ask around and find a few multilingual speakers. Ask them, "Do other languages use different parts of speech than English uses? If so, what are they?" Report your findings to the class.

ORIGINAL PROJECTS

None of the Above

If none of the projects above grab you, make up your own. Convert the parts of speech into colors, and color-code a paragraph. Translate the parts of speech into musical notes, code a paragraph, and play it. Identify some nouns, verbs, and adjectives that science has created in the last fifty years. Invent a new part of speech. Write a personality profile of a verb. Whatever you decide to do, get your teacher's approval first.
