Quinn,S. E. G. Lea,2010 Human

adults appear different from other animals in their ability to form abstract mental representations that go beyond perceptual similarity. In short, they can conceptualize the world. This apparent uniqueness leads to an immediate puzzle: WHEN and HOW does this abstract system come into being? To answer this question, we need to explore the origins of adult concepts both developmentally and phylogenetically. When does the developing child acquire the ability to use abstract concepts? Does the transition occur around 2 years with the onset of symbolic representation and language? Or is it independent of the emergence of language? When in evolutionary history did an abstract representational system emerge? Is there something unique about the human brain? How would a computational system operating on the basis of perceptual associations develop into a system operating on the basis of abstract relations? Is this ability present in other species but masked by their inability to verbalise abstractions? Perhaps the very notion of concepts is empty and should be done away with altogether. This book tackles the age-old puzzle of what might be unique about human concepts. Intuitively, we have a sense that our thoughts are somehow different from those of animals and young children such as infants. Yet if true, this raises the question of where and how this uniqueness arises. What are the factors that have played out during the life course of the individual and over the evolution of humans that have contributed to the emergence of this apparently unique ability? This volume brings together a collection of world specialists who have grappled with these questions from different perspectives to try to resolve the issue. It includes contributions from leading psychologists, neuroscientists, child and infant specialists, and animal cognition specialists. Taken together, this story leads to the idea that there is no unique ingredient in the emergence of human concepts but rather a powerful and potentially unique mix of biological abilities and personal and social history that has led to where the human mind now stands. A must read for students and researchers in the cognitive sciences.

Biological Science Freeman, Scott Freeman, Warren W. Burggren, 2002-03. By Warren Burggren, University of North Texas; Jay Brewster, Pepperdine University; Laurel Hester, South Carolina Governor's School for Science and Mathematics. Rather than repeat what is covered in the textbook, the Student Study Guide will help students study biology and think like a scientist. Introductory chapters on Data Interpretation, Looking for Relationships,

Experimentation and Writing will be illustrated and developed for the student Each text chapter will then be covered with the goal of reinforcing the ideas mentioned in introductory chapters and to tie them to appropriate topics within a chapter

Stars and Galaxies Michael A. Seeds, 2000-07 Adapted from the newly revised FOUNDATIONS OF ASTRONOMY Sixth Edition STARS AND GALAXIES Second Edition contains the introductory and historical chapters from FOUNDATIONS as well as all of the chapters on stars galaxies cosmology and the chapter on extraterrestrial life This newly revised and updated Second Edition shows students their place in the universe not just their location but also their role as planet dwellers in an evolving universe In a clear and conversational writing style Seeds shows students how science works and how scientists depend on evidence to test hypotheses Through a discussion of this interplay between evidence and hypothesis the book provides not just a series of facts but also a conceptual framework for understanding the logic of astronomical knowledge Fascinating and vivid the book conveys the author's love of the subject shows students how the universe can be described by a small set of physical laws and illustrates how they can comprehend their place in the universe by understanding these laws and not through memorization of facts The book's use of mathematics is incorporated into the body of the text but the arguments of the text do not depend on mathematical reasoning allowing math averse students to easily follow the story
