

Deer: Predation or Starvation? [23.5]

Introduction: In 1970 the deer population of an island forest reserve was about 2000 animals. Although the island had excellent vegetation for feeding, the food supply obviously had limits. Thus, the forest management personnel feared that overgrazing might lead to mass starvation. Since the area was too remote for hunters, the wildlife service decided to bring in natural predators to control the deer population. It was hoped that natural predation would keep the deer population from becoming too large and also increase the deer quality (or health), as predators often eliminate the weaker members of the herd. In 1971, ten wolves were flown into the island.

The results of this program are shown in the following table. The population change is the number of deer born minus the number of deer that died during that year. The herd population started at 2000 when this study began.

- Calculate the number of deaths (predation + starvation).
- To determine the deer population change, subtract the number of deaths from births (births - deaths); this can be a positive number, indicating growth, or a negative number which indicates a population decline.
- Calculate the deer population by adding/subtracting the population change from the population the year before [13.5 marks]
- The first row (1971) has been completed for you as an example.
- Graph the deer and wolf populations as two lines (color and label) [4 marks]
