

REFLECTION PAPER

How is globalization define by the speaker?

Ian Goldin defined globalization that is very unpredictable and it involves the institutions, technology, the era of finance, politics and respondents. Globalization is getting more complex and its change is more rapid. He show the Graph about the World Population and explain the Life expectancy in 25 years and Illiteracy has gone down and he even pointed about the Intercounty Inequality that people who are not participating and left out in globalization.

What are the pros and cons of globalization?

Globalization is really helpful in a country because of rapid technological advancement, it is easy to communicate around the world especially the use of mobile phones, internet and everything that is used of technologies. Being globalized country is a more attractive because it means it is competitive and really worth to trade a product. However, there is a country is being globalized but it is not felt for everyone because of billion populations and economically unstable.

Do you have the understanding and sensitivity you need to interact in a global community in which other persons may look, act, and think differently than you do?

I really understand that people have different perspectives in life and I'm really okay with that because I am really open -minded when it comes to communicating to different people. Because in Global Community is about interacting in different races and have different cultures and whatever they say or do a violent reaction I have to be understand them to make the communication smoothly.

Are you ready to embrace diversity? How are you going to do it?

Qualified yes, To be one of the 21st century learners is both an opportunity and a responsibility. It's an opportunity to widen our perspective about diversity and accept, appreciate cultural differences, identities, religions, likes and dislikes, as well as different sound points. I for one, was able to appreciate everyone's uniqueness and various communities. However, it's also a responsibility to taken on to our shoulder the necessity to not degrade any differences among people, among community and sound point. Thus, to be able to to embrace diverse is to appreciate differences and carry deeply the responsibility along it. In that sense, you will be a good example who can illuminate greatness and goodness to everyone.
