Chapter 17 Section 4 The Home Front:

The Home Fronts of Iowa, 1939-1945 Lisa L. Ossian, 2009-10-16 As Americans geared up for World War II each state responded according to its economy and circumstances as well as the disposition of its citizens This book considers the war years in Iowa by looking at activity on different home fronts and analyzing the resilience of Iowans in answering the call to support the war effort With its location in the center of the country far from potentially threatened coasts Iowa was also the center of American isolationism historically Republican and resistant to involvement in another European war Yet Iowans were quick to step up and Lisa Ossian draws on historical archives as well as on artifacts of popular culture to record the rhetoric and emotion of their support Ossian shows how Iowans quickly moved from skepticism to overwhelming enthusiasm for the war and answered the call on four fronts farms factories communities and kitchens Iowa's farmers faced labor and machinery shortages yet produced record amounts of crops and animals even at the expense of valuable topsoil Ordnance plants turned out bombs and machine gun bullets Meanwhile communities supported war bond and scrap drives while housewives coped with rationing raised Victory gardens and turned to home canning The Home Fronts of Iowa 1939-1945 depicts real people and their concerns showing the price paid in physical and mental exhaustion and notes the heavy toll exacted on Iowa's sons who fell in battle Ossian also considers the relevance of such issues as race class and gender particularly the role of women on the home front and the recruitment of both women and blacks for factory work taking into account a prevalent suspicion of ethnic groups by the state's largely homogeneous population The fact that Iowans could become loyal citizen soldiers forming an Industrial and Defense Commission even before Pearl Harbor speaks not only to the patriotism of these sturdy midwesterners but also to the overall resilience of Americans In unraveling how Iowans could so overwhelmingly support the war Ossian digs deep into history to show us the power of emotion and to help us better understand why World War II is consistently remembered as the Good War Life and Liberty Philip Roden, 1987

America Pathways to the Present, 1995 Before The Bomb John Chappell, 2014-10-17 Almost forgotten in the haze of events that followed Nagasaki and Hiroshima the summer of 1945 witnessed an intense public debate over how best to end the war against Japan Weary of fighting the American people were determined to defeat the imperial power that had so viciously attacked them in December 1941 but they were uncertain of the best means to accomplish this goal Certain of victory the inevitable triumph promised by Franklin Roosevelt immediately after Pearl Harbor Americans became increasingly concerned about the human cost of defeating Japan Particularly after the brutal Iwo Jima and Okinawa campaigns syndicated columnists newspaper editorialists radio commentators and others questioned the necessity of invasion A lengthy naval and aerial siege would have saved lives but might have protracted the war beyond the public's patience Advertisers filled the media with visions of postwar affluence even as the government was exhorting its citizens to remain dedicated to the war effort There was heated discussion as well about the morality of firebombing Japanese cities and of using poison gas and other agents of chemical warfare Chappell provides a balanced assessment of all these debates grounding his observations in a wealth of primary sources He also discusses the role of racism the demand for unconditional surrender and the government's reaction to public opinion in the decision to drop the atomic bomb Compelling and controversial this is the first work to examine the confusing and contradictory climate of the American home front in the months leading up to V J Day

The San Francisco Bay Area Mel Scott, 1985-01-01

On the Home Front Michele Stenehjem Gerber, 1992 The Hanford Site in southeastern Washington state was built by the Army Corps of Engineers and the DuPont Corporation during World War II to produce plutonium for America's first atomic weapons The gigantic facility was immediately successful producing and delivering in less than two years the plutonium for the world's initial atomic explosion and for the bomb dropped on Nagasaki that effectively ended World War II This first complete history of Hanford was made possible by the recent declassification of tens of thousands of formerly secret government documents relating to the construction operation and maintenance of the site It describes the releases planned and accidental of radioactive and chemical contaminants their pathways through the environment attempts to correct problems under conditions of rapid nearly chaotic change and the secrecy of government operations that made scientific review of Hanford processes virtually impossible
