virtual worlds Players in these networked worlds sometimes develop a sense of community that transcends the game itself In Communities of Play game researcher and designer Celia Pearce explores emergent fan cultures in networked digital worlds actions by players that do not coincide with the intentions of the game s designers Pearce looks in particular at the Uru Diaspora a group of players whose game Uru Ages Beyond Myst closed These players primarily baby boomers immigrated into other worlds self identifying as refugees relocated in There com they created a hybrid culture integrating aspects of their old world Ostracized at first they became community leaders Pearce analyzes the properties of virtual worlds and looks at the ways design affects emergent behavior She discusses the methodologies for studying online games including a personal account of the sometimes messy process of ethnography Pearce considers the play turn in culture and the advent of a participatory global playground enabled by networked digital games every bit as communal as the global village Marshall McLuhan saw united by television Countering the ludological definition of play as unproductive and pointing to the long history of pre digital play practices Pearce argues that play can be a prelude to creativity

The Mountain and the Politics of Representation Jenny Hall,Martin Hall,2023-11-01 The stories we tell published or otherwise condition our mountain experiences in practice and reinforce cultural memory and representation Yet as this book and the authors within it set out to demonstrate if we look beyond the boundaries of this singular white history there is a rich diversity of stories to tell This volume contributes to a growing body of scholarship that calls for a heterogeneity of voices in mountain memoir genres For the first time this diverse scholarship interrogates how mountaineering literary and media culture impact bodies spaces and places in order to nuance how commodification intersects across social categories and is embodied in multi dimensional ways In this volume we explore a burgeoning tradition of mountaineering literature of cinema and of memoir to appreciate difference beyond the habitual heroic white male adventurer that dominates screens and bookshelves Through exploring multidimensional axes of social differentiation from gender race class and age to dis ability and sexuality the book will demonstrate how commodification is embodied through representation in mountaineering literature media film and memoir in mountaineering
