Programming Ivy D. Cook, Paul A. Jensen, J. Wesley Barnes, 1980-11-01 Design and Analysis of Flow Control Algorithms for Data Networks Paolo Lucas Narváez Guarnieri, 1997 Flow Control and Routing Algorithms for Data Networks R. G. Gallager, S. J. Golestaani, 1980 We consider flow control algorithms consisting of two parts quasi static flow control and dynamic flow control The quasi static part uses short term average information on network utilization to allocate maximum data rates and to determine routes for each user The rates are allocated to achieve an optimal trade off between assigned priority cost functions for each user and the cost of congestion in the network This optimization can be done by a distributed algorithm and is essentially no more complicated than optimizing routing alone The dynamic flow control has the function of admitting or rejecting individual units of traffic into the network so as to enforce the maximum allocated rates and to prevent congestion by smoothing out the fluctuations in buffer occupancy Author Distributed Flow Control and Intelligent Data Transfer in High Performance Computing Networks Mehdi Sadeghi, 2015 Analysis of Flow-controls in Switched Data Networks by an Unified Model Guy Pujolle, 1978 Re-architecting Flow-control Adaptation for Grid Environments, 2004 The performance of TCP in wide area networks WANs is becoming increasingly important with the deployment of computational and data grids At WAN speeds TCP does not provide good performance for data intensive applications without the tuning of flow control buffer sizes Manual adjustment of buffer sizes is tedious even for network experts For scientists tuning is often an impediment to getting work done Thus buffer tuning should be automated Existing techniques for automatic buffer tuning only measure the bandwidth delay product BDP during connection establishment This ignores the large fluctuation of the BDP over the lifetime of the connection In contrast the Dynamic Right Sizing algorithm dynamically changes buffer sizes in response to changing network conditions In this paper we describe a new user space implementation of Dynamic Right Sizing in FTP drsFTP that supports third party data transfers a mainstay of scientific computing In addition to comparing the performance of the new implementation with the old we give performance results over a live WAN The new implementation gives transfer rates of up to five times higher than untuned FTP

Asynchronous Distributed Flow Control Algorithms Jeannine Mosely, MASSACHUSETTS INST OF TECH

CAMBRIDGE LAB FOR INFORMATION AND DECISION SYSTEMS., 1984 This document considers algorithms for flow control in computer networks with fixed routing The goal is to establish input rates for each source destination pair that satisfy a particular fairness criterion Described are several algorithms in which the input rates are calculated based on controls established by the links of the network These controls are updated iteratively using feedback information from the network It is shown that the rates thus calculated converge to the desired values when the links are assumed to update synchronously and without feedback delay A model for asynchronous operation with delay is given and we demonstrate for this model that the input rates calculated by the synchronous algorithms may fail to converge We show how to modify the algorithms by the introduction of an update protocol and by using more of the available feedback information so that convergence of the rates is guaranteed The author extends the model for asynchronous computation developed by Bertsekas to get some results relating to general asynchronous distributed algorithms with update protocols These results are used to give an alternate proof of the correct operation of one of the flow control algorithms A computer program is developed to simulate the flow control algorithms for a voice packet network The simulation results indicate that the algorithms behave as expected for a network with static loads However when input loads change in imitation of real conversations the control algorithms do not adapt fast enough to control the flows effectively Author Performance Models of Flow Control in Computer Networks Alan Harris Harbitter, 1982 Models for Adaptive Flow Control Schemes in an Integrated Packet-based Voice and Data Network, 1992 Flow Control and Routing in Computer Networks Amna Hussein Marzouki, 1994 Iterative Solution of Network Flow Problems by Dynamic Programming Deepak Keshav Pai, 1967
