COMPARE SETTINGS

The setting of a story or drama is where and when it takes place.

HOW TO COMPARE THE SETTINGS

Write and phrases that describe the setting. Use and phrases to create a visualization of the setting. Make sure your visualization is supported by text evidence. Does the setting change throughout the story?

COMPARE CHARACTERS

Characters are the people, animals, or structures in a story or play. Good readers pay attention to details in a story and notice the traits of characters.

HOW TO COMPARE CHARACTERS

We can make inferences about characters through their words, thoughts, or actions.

1. What does the character say? What are his or her thoughts? What actions does he or she perform?
2. What kind of person would say that, and do that? Identify the traits that match the character.
3. How are these traits similar and different from other characters in the story?
4. How do the characters interact with each other?

EXCERPT FROM CINDERELLA

Cinderella sighed and sighed. "I wish I could go to the ball, too, and see that handsome Prince and all the lovely ladies," she said.

"You never your party and gown," said the stepmother. "That is all you are fit for, your needle and thread."

So Cinderella went back to her study, but as she approached and opened the door she found her chamber so full of things she could hardly see.

COMPARE EVENTS

The events of a story are the things that happen. Events often lead up to problems and solutions.

HOW TO COMPARE EVENTS

1. Find the spot in the text where a problem or major event occurs.
2. Identify important events leading up to the problem and after the problem.
3. How are the events similar? How are they different?

EXCERPT FROM CINDERELLA

The Prince had run for the day when all the King and Queen's people were gathered before them, a dinner had been given and a dance had been held. Although the King and Queen were very old, they were still very strong and healthy.

With the last stroke of twelve, midnight came, and the music stopped. Cinderella and the other girls and young ladies who were at the ball, were all very tired. They were all very happy, but they were all very sad, too. They were all very tired, and they were all very sad, too. They were all very tired, and they were all very sad, too.
