

- If necessary, mount adapter (1) on connector.

- Connect compression pressure tester to connector or adapter.
- Turn over engine with starter.

 P00 51

The measured compression pressure depends on the starting speed during the measuring process and the altitude of the engine installation site. This means that limit values cannot be determined exactly. The compression pressure measurement is only recommended as a reference measurement of all cylinders of an engine to each other. If more than 15% deviation has been found, the cause should be determined by disassembling the cylinder unit concerned.
