The Development of Children Michael Cole, Sheila R. Cole, Cynthia Lightfoot, 2005 Development is best understood as a fusion of biological social and psychological processes interacting in the unique medium of human culture In this text the authors have tried to show not only the role of each of these factors considered separately but also how they interact in diverse cultural contexts to create whole unique human beings Pref

Developmental Psychology David Reed Shaffer, 2002 This best selling topically organized child and adolescent development text covers the major theories and research of the field It is known to be a scholarly developmental text that is interesting accurate up to date and written clearly and concisely The author stresses the processes that underlie developmental change so that students come away from the course with a solid understanding of the causes and complexities of human development Finally the author connects the theory and research to a number of real life settings to prepare students for their future roles as parents teachers nurses or psychologists

Understanding Human Development Grace J. Craig, Wendy L. Dunn, 2006 This chronologically organized text has an applied focus and is intentionally selective in the topics it includes so that the full text can be managed within one semester It assumes no prior psychology exposure making it perfect for students of nursing social work and education in addition to psychology but it does not attempt to address in depth those issues covered extensively in Introductory Psychology courses Rather the text reflects the field of Human Development in its current state with emphasis on developmental processes and their explanations The research base of the text is current and solid and the book emphasizes depth of content over research process
