House of Commons - Defence Committee: Towards the Next Defence and Security Review: Part One - HC 197 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee, 2014-01-07 In this report the Defence Committee argues that the capabilities of HM Forces should be determined not by budgetary constraints but by a fully developed strategy which defines the position in the world that the UK wants to adopt The report urges the government to produce a comprehensive national security strategy in the first place and let that document along with the Comprehensive Spending Review CSR direct the next Strategic Defence and Security Review SDSR The allocation of resources will be based on national spending priorities set to meet the nation's security needs There is a danger of defence becoming a matter of discretionary spending Decisions about the expeditionary capability that the UK retains must be based on proper strategic decision making about the UK's place in the world and not simply flow from the horse trading that surrounds the CSR process The report points to a lack of understanding amongst the public of why we have Armed Forces General sympathy and support for the Armed Forces must not obscure a hard headed understanding of what they are for The process of producing the next Defence and Security Review is the opportunity to engage the public in understanding the future of the Armed Forces The Committee has very real concerns about the focus that will be given to the number of asymmetric security threats to the UK such as from terrorism or cyber attack The Government must think more strategically about the resilience of the country's critical infrastructure and recovery following an attack

The Official History of the Cabinet Secretaries Ian Beesley, 2016-12 This book is the official history of British Cabinet Secretaries the most senior civil servants in UK government from the post war period up to 2002 In December 1916 Maurice Hankey sat at the Cabinet table to take the first official record of Cabinet decisions Prior to this there had been no formal Cabinet agenda and no record of Cabinet decisions Using authoritative government papers some of which have not yet been released for public scrutiny this book tells the story of Hankey's post war successors as they advised British Prime Ministers and recorded Cabinet's crucial decisions as the country struggled through the exhaustion that followed World War II grappled with a weak economy that could not support its world ambitions saw the end of the post war economic and social consensus and faced the 9 11 attack on the Twin Towers symbol of Western dominance It looks at events through the eyes of politically neutral senior civil servants the mandarins of Britain It shows how the dramatic foreshortening of timescales and global news have complicated the working lives of those who daily face the deluge of potentially destabilising events the skills required to see dangers and opportunities around corners when to calm things down and when to accelerate action why secrecy is endemic when government comes close to losing control or when political ambition threatens self destruction This book will be of great interest to students of British politics British history and British government

The Strategic Defence and Security Review and the National Security Strategy Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee, 2011-08-03 This report notes mounting concern that UK Armed Forces may be falling below the minimum utility required to deliver the commitments that they are currently being tasked to carry out let alone the tasks they are likely to face between 2015 to 2020 when it is acknowledged that there will be capability gaps The Committee is concerned that UK Armed Forces will be continually operating at the maximum level envisaged by the Defence Planning Assumptions The Committee is not convinced that this aspiration can be achieved by co operation with our allies given the challenges of aligning political with operational needs

The SDSR identified seven military tasks and the Defence Planning Assumptions that underpin them. However the Review fails to show how decisions such as those on the Aircraft Carriers and Nimrod MRA4 will lead to the Armed Forces being able to undertake those military tasks. The Committee has serious concerns over the realisation of what is called Future Force 2020, the Government's intended shape of the Armed Forces from 2020, particularly as the provision of the necessary resources is only a Government aspiration, not Government policy. The MoD must reform and ensure substantially improved transparency and control over its finance and budgetary practices. When committing to undertake new operations, the Government should state from the outset where that operation fits in the Defence Planning Assumptions and which of the military tasks it is meeting. The Committee is concerned that the Government seems to have postponed the sensible aspiration of bringing commitments and resources into line in that it has taken on the new commitment of Libya while reducing the resources available to MoD. Parliamentary Debates (Hansard). Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons, 2013 Foot and Mouth Disease 2001 Iain Anderson, Great Britain. Department for Environment, Food & Rural Affairs, 2002. This is the report of the independent inquiry that looked at the Government's handling of the foot and mouth epidemic of 2001. It makes the point that given the spread of the disease before its detection, the impact of the outbreak was bound to be severe even if everything had been handled perfectly. However, there were problems and the initial response was neither fast enough nor effectively coordinated. MAFF took the lead but came under severe resource pressure, not only in the number of vets but also in the managerial and logistical skills that had to be later provided by the army. Because disease control policy had not been fully debated before the outbreak, arguments took place whilst the disease was raging and changes were made at short notice and were poorly communicated. In addition, the full impact on tourism and the rural economy was not clearly recognised. However, in Scotland, with a different management structure and closer relationships between central government, local government and the farming industry, the outbreak was better managed. As well as analysing the conduct of the Government during the epidemic, the report contains a series of recommendations to help ensure that the chances of exotic animal diseases entering the country are reduced, the farming industry is less vulnerable to outbreaks, and that if such outbreaks do occur, the impact is minimised.
