Lightweight Aggregate Concrete - Codes and standards fib Fédération internationale du béton, 1999-08-01 Part 1 Recommended extensions to Model Code 90 Starting in 1995 as a Joint CEB FIP Working Group on Lightweight Aggregate Concrete LWAC the group was after the merger of CEB and FIP attached to the new fib Commission 8 Concrete As a background for an extension of the CEB FIP Model Code 1990 MC 90 it delivered firstly Bulletin 4 Similarly to what has been done before in the field of High Strength High Performance Concrete the present guide identifies the lacunae in the existing MC90 and proposes supplementary or alternative solutions to be applied for lightweight aggregate concretes In order to facilitate its use the report is edited in two columns following the numbering of the CEB FIP Model Code 1990 The group has given preference to topics of practical importance for LWAC structures and for which reliable information is available

Justifications of the proposed extensions are to be found in the references to each section Part 2 Identification of research needs The technical report identifies the research needs resulting from those clauses of MC 90 which need amendment and for which more basic research should provide a better understanding of mechanical physical and chemical processes Part 3 Application of lightweight aggregate concrete The state of art report documents 33 application examples of projects world wide Twenty eight two page and five one page presentations aim to explain the motivation for adopting this technology and report on the design considerations and codes applied the practical experience during design and construction the results obtained and the infield performance for each example references list the literature where more detailed information can be found

Punching of Structural Concrete Slabs fib Fédération internationale du béton, 2001-01-01 Punching is considered to be one of the most difficult problems in structural concrete design and mechanical models or theoretical analyses were developed rather late in the history of concrete research attempts This fib Bulletin reviews the development of design models and theoretical analyses since the CEB Bulletin 168 Punching Shear in Reinforced Concrete State of the Art Report published in 1985 The role of the concrete tensile strength was specially addressed In this respect the present bulletin is also following up the CEB Bulletin 237 Concrete Tension and Size Effects Utilisation of concrete tension in structural concrete design and relevance of size effect Contributions from CEB Task Group 2 7 published in 1997 Apart from new theoretical developments a comprehensive databank for comparisons with experimental evidence is included About 400 punching tests were critically reviewed and evaluated in a consistent manner This is thought to be the first step towards a generally agreed selection of reliable tests The evident value of such a data bank is illustrated by comparisons carried out between the data and some of the analytical proposals as well as empirical code formulas
