

POSITION PAPER

Delegate Name: Saiarjun Gopinath

Committee: C34 (Peacekeeping Committee)

Country: Russia Federation

Agenda: The failures of UN peacekeeping operations in Bosnia, Rwanda, and other countries.

Overview

- I. Rwanda is a small country in central Africa. The genocide that occurred there in 1994 was a tragic and brutal struggle. The Hutu majority and the Tutsi minority are the two main ethnic groupings with which the genocide began. These hostilities date back many years. Although Hutu and Tutsi had coexisted traditionally, ethnic divides were made worse by colonial pressures, especially during Belgian control. The ethnic divide was a very important factor that contributed to the genocide.
- II. In Rwanda, there have long been ethnic conflicts and prejudice between the Hutu and Tutsi communities' giving preference to the Tutsi minority during their colonial authority, the Belgians deepened racial tensions and created an identity card system that categorized people according to their ethnicity.
- III. The plane carrying Hutu president of Rwanda, Juvénal Habyarimana, was shot down on April 6, 1994. The genocide was sparked by this incident. After the assassination, moderate Hutus and Tutsis were widely and methodically killed. The military, militias, and government under Hutu leadership planned the violence. This was one of the main causes of the genocide.
- IV. Between April and July of 1994, radical Hutu factions planned a genocide against the Tutsi people over a 100-day period. Machetes, guns, and other weapons were used in a methodical manner in the killings. The two ethnic groups' jealousy were heightened by this use of aggression. The dissemination of hate speech and propaganda through several media channels was essential in constructing a narrative that degraded the Tutsi community. This propaganda had a part in fostering an environment of distrust, fear, and hatred.
- V. The mandate of the UN Assistance Mission for Rwanda (UNAMIR), which was created to support the promotion of peace in Rwanda and assist in implementing the Arusha Accords, was inadequate. The mandate of UNAMIR lacked the requisite power, resources, and operational capacity to adequately tackle the mounting violence.
- VI. In addition to having little funding, UNAMIR did not have enough troops or resources to deal with the extent of the violence. At the height of the genocide, the unit was downsized from an initial contingent of over 2,500 soldiers to little over 250.
- VII. Strong intervention to halt the genocide was not possible because to UNAMIR's narrow rules of engagement. In certain cases, peacekeepers were forbidden from utilising force to defend civilians.

book traces the history of Regina College Saskatchewan Canada from its founding in 1911 to the outbreak of World War II in 1939 The Methodist Church opened the college to offer academic music and business training to youth living in surrounding rural areas During its early history the college provided a high school education to youth from rural districts where there were no secondary schools Affiliation in 1925 with the University of Saskatchewan allowed the college to teach the first 2 years of a Bachelor of Arts degree Because of financial difficulties in 1934 the church acquiesced to a takeover bid from the University of Saskatchewan However the university refused until 1959 to allow a full degree program in Regina Expansion of the Regina campus proceeded rapidly thereafter and culminated with the creation of the University of Regina in 1974
Chapter 1 examines the establishment of the college in the context of existing social and economic conditions Chapter 2 analyzes the acute financial crisis affecting the college as a result of the 1913 recession and the outbreak of World War I Chapter 3 focuses on the accomplishments of President E W Stapleford who was appointed in 1915 and was instrumental in raising hundreds of thousands of dollars for the college Chapter 4 evaluates the contribution made by the Conservatory of Music to the cultural life of the city and province Chapters 5 and 6 examine the educational goals of the college and how students responded Chapter 7 deals with the abortive attempts by Regina College in the late 1920s and early 1930s to develop into a university The final chapter deals with the consequences of the shift from church to university control Essentially the University of Saskatchewan provided financial security but postponed for a generation the evolution of the college into a degree granting institution This book contains photographs and an index LP Canadian Plains Studies ,1973
