Aviation Automation Charles E. Billings,2018-01-29 The advent of very compact very powerful digital computers has made it possible to automate a great many processes that formerly required large complex machinery Digital computers have made possible revolutionary changes in industry commerce and transportation This book an expansion and revision of the author's earlier technical papers on this subject describes the development of automation in aircraft and in the aviation system its likely evolution in the future and the effects that these technologies have had and will have on the human operators and managers of the system It suggests concepts that may be able to enhance human machine relationships in future systems The author focuses on the ability of human operators to work cooperatively with the constellation of machines they command and control because it is the interactions among these system elements that result in the system's success or failure whether in aviation or elsewhere. Aviation automation has provided great social and technological benefits but these benefits have not come without cost. In recent years new problems in aircraft have emerged due to failures in the human machine relationship. These incidents and accidents have motivated this inquiry into aviation automation. Similar problems in the air traffic management system are predicted as it becomes more fully automated. In particular incidents and accidents have occurred which suggest that the principle problems with today's aviation automation are associated with its complexity, coupling, autonomy and opacity. These problems are not unique to aviation they exist in other highly dynamic domains as well. The author suggests that a different approach to automation called human centered automation offers potential benefits for system performance by enabling a more cooperative human machine relationship in the control and management of aircraft and air traffic.

Human-Centered Aviation Automation: Principles and Guidelines, 1996 Human Factors in Certification John A. Wise, V. David Hopkin, 2000-08-01. Much has happened to certification and to human factors during the past few years. In this volume the editors and other specialists discuss the topic of human factors applied to certification. They focus on core topics in the certification process that have emerged in the study of product certification in high tech industries. The editors' purpose is to document advances in the study of certification processes defined largely by the 1993 international conference on the application of human factors principles to the study of product certification in man machine systems. Although the book focuses mostly on certification in large man machine systems such as aeronautics, its principles also apply to other high tech industries such as medicine and computers. An introductory paper and a group of papers presenting propositions and philosophies about human factors contribute to a framework for human factors certification. The papers in this volume adopt a more direct approach to certification activities, deal with aspects of human machine integration, address topics that should feature in any established human factors certification of advanced aviation systems, use ideas that already exist in aviation as a basis for discussing certification issues, consider issues that arise in the certification of complex future systems and describe some current characteristics of human factors as a discipline that would influence its application to certification.

Verification and Validation of Complex Systems: Human Factors Issues John A. Wise, V. David Hopkin, Paul Stager, 2013-06-29. Despite its increasing importance the verification and validation of the human machine interface is perhaps the most overlooked aspect of system development. Although much has been written about the design and development process, very little organized information is available on how to verify and validate highly complex and highly coupled dynamic systems. Inability to evaluate such systems adequately may become the limiting factor in our ability to employ systems that our technology and knowledge allow us to design. This volume, based on a NATO Advanced Science Institute held in 1992, is designed to provide guidance for the verification and validation of all highly complex and coupled systems Air traffic control is used as an example to ensure that the theory is described in terms that will allow its implementation but the results can be applied to all complex and coupled systems The volume presents the knowledge and theory in a format that will allow readers from a wide variety of backgrounds to apply it to the systems for which they are responsible The emphasis is on domains where significant advances have been made in the methods of identifying potential problems and in new testing methods and tools Also emphasized are techniques to identify the assumptions on which a system is built and to spot their weaknesses

22nd DASC, 2003 The proceedings of this conference include flight critical systems intelligent interactive systems software engineering comm nav surveillance air traffic management open systems architecture space systems UAV and synthetic vision and situational awareness Advanced Avionics on the Airbus A330/A340 and the Boeing 777 Aircraft, 1993 Proceedings, 2003 Human Factors Guidelines for Air Traffic Management (ATM) Systems, 2000 Pilot-induced Oscillation Suppression Methods and Their Effects on Large Transport Aircraft Handling Qualities R. van der Weerd, 2000 Aeronautical Engineering: A Cumulative Index to a Continuing Bibliography (supplement 325), 1995 Aeronautical Engineering, 1993 A selection of annotated references to unclassified reports and journal articles that were introduced into the NASA scientific and technical information system and announced in Scientific and technical aerospace reports STAR and International aerospace abstracts IAA American Book Publishing Record Cumulative 1998 R R Bowker Publishing, 1999-03 Aerospace International, 2003 NASA SP., 1992
