Book Report On The Book Speak:

Creating Book Reports with Cool New Digital Tools Gina Hagler, 2013-12-15 With Web 2.0 tools students have creative options for book reports that go beyond the traditional plot summaries and dioramas. Teens can use digital storytelling tools to share information about their books and generate enthusiasm for reading. The author discusses a variety of options for creating book reports with digital tools including using movie making programs to create exciting book trailers, crafting multimedia slide shows, making original animations starring an avatar, and more. Projects fulfill numerous Common Core Standards including determining a text's theme and showing how it is conveyed through details and incorporating multimedia components in presentations to clarify information.

Irish Women Writers Speak Out Caitriona Moloney, Helen Thompson, 2003-03-01 Bringing together the diverse and marvelously articulate voices of women of Irish and Irish American descent, editors Caitriona Moloney and Helen Thompson examine the complicated maps of experience that the women's public, private, and literary lives represent, particularly as they engage in both feminism and postcolonialism. Acknowledging Mary Robinson's revised view of Irish identity, now global rather than local, this work recognizes the importance of identity as a site of mobility. The pieces reveal how complex the terms feminism and postcolonialism are; they examine how the individual writers see their identities constructed and/or mediated by sexuality. In addition, the book traces common themes of female agency, violence, generational conflicts, migration, emigration, religion, and politics, to name a few. As it represents the next wave of Irish women writers, this book offers fresh insight into the work of emerging and established authors and will appeal to a new generation of readers.
