Three Main Types of Bonds

The type of bond is determined by the electronegativity difference between the two atoms.

ionic bond

Electronegativity is a measure of an atom's ability to attract electrons towards itself. The greater the electronegativity difference between two atoms, the more likely they are to form an ionic bond.

Notes on:
Three Main types of Chemical Bonds

Covale
Bond

Formed between two non-metal atoms. The electrons are shared between the two atoms. Both atoms want the electrons and so they share them.

Metallic Bond

Only forms between metal atoms.

Electronegativity difference between two atoms is greater than 1.7.

Covalent Bond	Electron Transfer
Two atoms share their valence electrons. Example: CO_2	One atom gives up its valence electrons to another atom. Example: KCl advice on how to predict and manage market risk and how to allocate assets for best performance under different market conditions will be beneficial for both the market practitioner and individual investor as well as the MBA student. Written by a leading authority in the field, this book covers both the theory and practice of this often complicated subject and gives readers both a comprehensive and reliable source of market information. John Calverley has performed an invaluable service for investors and all those who wish to understand the relationship between economic fundamentals and financial markets. He has demystified the apparently complex and made it simple. The book is written in a clear, engaging style. I strongly recommend it. Roger Bootle, Managing Director, Capital Economics Limited. John Calverley's Investors Guide to Economic Fundamentals combines a clear explanation of the forces shaping the world's economic landscape with a valuable insider's perspective on the impact they can have on financial markets. It offers private investors and students of financial markets alike a fascinating insight into the complex world of economics and finance while acting as a useful reference tool for the seasoned market practitioner. Michael B. Zelouf, CFA, Director of International Investments, Western Asset Management.
