Prévenir le suicide Marguerite Charazac-Brunel, 2002 Le suicide survient dans un contexte de crise intrafamiliale et sociale grave qui peut cependant passer inaperçue. Il est devenu en France la première cause de mortalité des quinze trente ans et l'une des trois premières causes de mortalité des plus de soixante cinq ans. Centrée sur l'importante question de la prévention, cet ouvrage explique les processus manifestes et latents qui engendrent le risque de passage à l'acte suicidaire. Il analyse les formes plus discrètes de la tendance suicidaire à l'œuvre dans les conduites à risque et les équivalents suicidaires. Il décrit avec précision les facteurs de risques familiaux, sociaux et environnementaux et les signes annonciateurs du passage à l'acte suicidaire repérables surtout dans le comportement et l'expression verbale. Il expose aussi les facteurs de risques spécifiques à certaines professions et institutions dans le champ de la santé, de la justice et de l'enseignement. Ce livre présente par ailleurs les différents modes de prise en charge du suicidant depuis la constitution du réseau de soins jusqu'à la prise en charge psychiatrique. Il détaille les caractéristiques des psychiatriques permettant d'éviter l'extension du risque de suicide aux autres membres de la famille et leur descendance. Enrichi de nombreuses vignettes cliniques, cet ouvrage s'adresse tous les professionnels du soin et l'ensemble des intervenants du secteur médico-social. Son style le rend accessible aux professionnels confrontés au risque suicidaire ainsi qu'à toute personne préoccupée par cette question.
