1. At 100% confidence interval for the proportion of women who support the proposition of equal rights for the disadvantaged sex group. The null and alternative hypotheses are:  $H_0: p = 0.50$ ,  $H_A: p \neq 0.50$ . Which of the following conditions for inference are met? (Select all that apply.)
- (a) The data were randomly sampled from the population of interest.
- (b) The sample size is less than 10% of the population size.
- (c) There were not too many successes or failures.
- (d) The population size is finite, approximately bounded.
- (e)  $n \geq 10$ ,  $np \geq 10$ ,  $nq \geq 10$ .
2. Which of the following statements about p-values are true?
- a. P-values 0 ... 100 represent errors.
- b. the smallest acceptable value for error is 0.
- c. a test is always performed to determine if the subject is independent hypothesis.
- (a) 0 only.
- (b) 10 only.
- (c) 0 and 10.
- (d) 0, 10, and 100.

Berk, 2011-12-07 Modern Mathematical Statistics with Applications Second Edition strikes a balance between mathematical foundations and statistical practice In keeping with the recommendation that every math student should study statistics and probability with an emphasis on data analysis accomplished authors Jay Devore and Kenneth Berk make statistical concepts and methods clear and relevant through careful explanations and a broad range of applications involving real data The main focus of the book is on presenting and illustrating methods of inferential statistics that are useful in research It begins with a chapter on descriptive statistics that immediately exposes the reader to real data The next six chapters develop the probability material that bridges the gap between descriptive and inferential statistics Point estimation inferences based on statistical intervals and hypothesis testing are then introduced in the next three chapters The remainder of the book explores the use of this methodology in a variety of more complex settings This edition includes a plethora of new exercises a number of which are similar to what would be encountered on the actuarial exams that cover probability and statistics Representative applications include investigating whether the average tip percentage in a particular restaurant exceeds the standard 15% considering whether the flavor and aroma of Champagne are affected by bottle temperature or type of pour modeling the relationship between college graduation rate and average SAT score and assessing the likelihood of O ring failure in space shuttle launches as related to launch temperature

Introduction to Statistics Gottfried Emanuel Noether, 1971 The introductory statistics course presents serious pedagogical problems to the instructor For the great majority of students the course represents the only formal contact with statistical thinking that he or she will have in college Students come from many different fields of study and a large number suffer from math anxiety Thus an instructor who is willing to settle for some limited objectives will have a much better chance of success than an instructor who aims for a broad exposure to statistics Many statisticians agree that the primary objective of the introductory statistics course is to introduce students to variability and uncertainty and how to cope with them when drawing inferences from observed data Additionally the introductory COurse should enable students to handle a limited number of useful statistical techniques The present text which is the successor to the author's Introduction to Statistics A Nonparametric Approach Houghton Mifflin Company Boston 1976 tries to meet these objectives by introducing the student to the basic ideas of estimation and hypothesis testing early in the course after a rather brief introduction to data organization and some simple ideas about probability Estimation and hypothesis testing are discussed in terms of the two sample problem which is both conceptually simpler and more realistic than the one sample problem that customarily serves as the basis for the discussion of statistical inference
