Problems and Problem Solving in Chemistry Education Georgios Tsapralis, 2021-05-17 Problem solving is central to the teaching and learning of chemistry at secondary, tertiary, and post tertiary levels of education, opening to students and professional chemists alike a whole new world for analysing data, looking for patterns, and making deductions. As an important higher order thinking skill, problem solving also constitutes a major research field in science education. Relevant education research is an ongoing process with recent developments occurring not only in the area of quantitative computational problems but also in qualitative problem solving. The following situations are considered: some general, others with a focus on specific areas of chemistry: quantitative problems, qualitative reasoning, metacognition, and resource activation. Deconstructing the problem solving process: an overview of the working memory hypothesis, reasoning with the electron pushing formalism, scaffolding organic synthesis skills, spectroscopy for structural characterization in organic chemistry, enzyme kinetics, problem solving in the academic chemistry laboratory, chemistry problem solving in context, team-based active learning, technology for molecular representations, IR spectra simulation, and computational quantum chemistry tools. The book concludes with methodological and epistemological issues in problem solving research and other perspectives in problem solving in chemistry. With a foreword by George Bodner.
