Carlo Scarpa Architect Intervening With History:

Carlo Scarpa, Architect Carlo Scarpa, R. Nicholas Olsberg, 1999 Between 1953 and 1978 the Italian architect Carlo Scarpa produced an incredibly varied range of works that challenge our notions of what modern architecture might be. Foremost in that work was the need to reconcile a wholehearted embrace of the new with the longstanding traditions of local craft and of universal practice to create an architecture that would clearly express its own machine-driven times without abandoning the psychic and sensual forces of place, materiality and memory. Carlo Scarpa Architect Intervening with History illustrates through abundant reproductions of Scarpa's drawings the ways the architect created a dialogue with light, space and architecture within the historic fabric of Italian cities. Presenting these projects as they exist today, the patient eye of contemporary photographer Guido Guidi deepens our understanding of this timely approach to architectural dialogue.

Carlo Scarpa Architect: Intervening with History, 1999 Encyclopedia of Twentieth Century Architecture R. Stephen Sennott, 2004 For more information including the introduction, a full list of entries and contributors, a generous selection of sample pages and more, visit the Encyclopedia of 20th Century Architecture website. Focusing on architecture from all regions of the world, this three-volume set profiles the twentieth century's vast chronicle of architectural achievements both within and well beyond the theoretical confines of modernism. Unlike existing works, this encyclopedia examines the complexities of rapidly changing global conditions that have dispersed modern architectural types, movements, styles and building practices across traditional geographic and cultural boundaries. Suspending Modernity: The Architecture of Franco Albini Kay Bea Jones, 2016-04-01 Franco Albini's works of architecture and design produced between 1930 and 1977 have enjoyed a recent revival but to date have received only sporadic scholarly attention from historians and critics of the Modern Movement. A chorus of Italian voices has sung his praises none more eloquently than his protégé Renzo Piano. Kay Bea Jones' illuminating study of selected works by Studio Albini will reintroduce his contributions to one of the most productive periods in Italian design. Albini emerged from the ideology of Rationalism to produce some of Italy's most coherent and poetic examples of modern design. He collaborated for over 25 years with Franca Helg and at a time when professional male-female partnerships were virtually unknown. His museums and installation motifs changed the way Italians displayed historic artifacts. He composed novel suspension structures for dwellings, shops, galleries and his signature INA pavilions where levity and gravity became symbolic devices for connoting his subjects. Albini clarified the vital role of tradition in modern architecture as he experimented with domestic space. His cohort defied CIAM ideologies to re-socialize postwar housing and speculate on ways of reviving Italian cities. He explored new fabrication technologies from the scale of furniture to wide-span steel structures yet he never abandoned the rigors of craft and detail in favor of mass production. Suspending Modernity follows the evolution of Albini's most important buildings and projects even as they reveal his apprehensive attitudes about the modern condition. Jones argues here that Albini's masterful use of materials and

Materials Oscar Riera Ojeda, 2003 This new series examines the role of details in contemporary architecture through the work of many emerging and established practitioners whose designs speak sensitively and energetically at the small scale The collection presents these details in photographs accompanied by working drawings sketches an introductory essay and captions that explain how the elements were conceived and built The details presented are often beautiful telltales of a designer's thoughts scaled to our eye made physical to the touch of our hand These crafted moments remind us that architecture can be a subtle and powerful force played out in some cases by evoking historical motifs in others by radical experimentation with new materials But more than a simple catalogue of ideas these details are ultimately shown as individual expressions of discovery gestures of delight or severity of beauty and clarity They are meaningful indications of the architect's presence more than all else willful signs that the true craft of design is alive and well Materials examines a wide spectrum of architectural palettes from traditional materials used in innovative ways to the testing of new substances that alter the meaning of historic forms The images demonstrate the use of single materials throughout a space as well as the joining of multiple components in one place. These details exemplify projects in which patterns, textures, color, and surface qualities contribute ingeniously to the character of the architecture around them.

Design & Historic Preservation David L. Ames, Richard D. Wagner, 2009. This collection of papers addresses two questions central to design and historic preservation: what are the parameters of compatibility in the design of additions to historic buildings and of new infill buildings in historic districts and landscapes. Presented at the Third National Forum on Historic Preservation Practice: A Critical Look at Design in Historic Preservation held at Goucher College. The authors include practicing and academic historic preservationists, architectural historians, architects, landscape architects, and engineers. Organized under the themes of Melding Contemporary and Historic Design, Design Standards in Changing Environments, Modernism and Postmodernism in Preservation, Design and Engineering, and Preservation issues of compatibility are explored through diverse projects in locations across the United States from historic Charleston, SC to downtown Los Angeles.

Architectural Record, 1999 Architectural Publications Index, 2000 The Canadian Architect, 1999 Architecture, 1999 The Architects' Journal, 1999-07 Strange Details Mike Cadwell, 2007. Looks at the work of four canonical architects who made strange with the most resistant aspect of architecture: construction. This title explores the strangeness in the material menagerie of Scarpa's Querini Stampalia, the wood light frame construction of Wright's Jacobs House, the welded steel frame of Mies Farnsworth House, and more.

Interiors, 1999-04 The Surface of Meaning Robert Bringhurst, 2008. The design and manufacture of books can tell as much about a people or a culture as the ambience of its streets and the architecture of its buildings. In our everyday lives, books surround us even if we are among the many who never read another one after high school. Their very jacket design asks us to make meaning of their presence and when we open them, the layout of words and stories within their covers makes us readers even before we begin to read. To Robert Bringhurst, typographer, poet, and writer, the presence of books and the story of books in Canada are preludes to understanding our culture. From the tattered book of Canadian poetry your moody cousin carried everywhere to the pristine hardcover book of Atwood's latest work in your brainy co-worker's hands, book design says much about who and where we are as Canadians. In The Surface of Meaning, Robert Bringhurst takes us on another of his walking tours, this time through the bramble of English and French Canadian books and book design from the mid 18th Century to the present day. Along the way, he discovers a true image trove of identity, culture, and history. And he does what no other work on books and publications does: He creates a truly national survey of Canadian books by bringing Canada's long history of Aboriginal story telling into a context of book. It is a context that goes into the depths of our prehistory far beyond the printed page. The Surface of Meaning is a tribute to Canadian books and publishing. It is irresistible to readers who love books as well as to designers and others who may simply prefer to look at them.
