

Carbon Cycle and Greenhouse Gases

REMEMBER

Photosynthesis uses CO_2 and water to make sugar and oxygen. Plants take in CO_2 from the air and release oxygen. Animals take in oxygen and release CO_2 into the air.

CLIMATE CHANGE

What is climate change? It is a change in the weather patterns over a long period of time. Climate change is caused by the greenhouse effect. The greenhouse effect is the process by which the sun's rays heat the earth's surface. The heat is then trapped by the greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, making the earth warmer.

Greenhouse gases are found in the atmosphere. They are gases that trap heat in the atmosphere. The most common greenhouse gases are water vapor, carbon dioxide, methane, and nitrous oxide. These gases are found in the atmosphere in small amounts. However, the amount of these gases has increased in the last 100 years. This is because of the burning of fossil fuels and the release of carbon dioxide from factories and power plants.

As the amount of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere increases, the earth's temperature also increases. This is because the greenhouse gases trap more heat in the atmosphere. The increase in temperature is causing the earth's climate to change. This is called climate change.

The Carbon Cycle

The carbon cycle is the process by which carbon is moved through the environment. Carbon is found in the atmosphere, in the soil, and in living organisms. The carbon cycle is a continuous process that keeps carbon moving through the environment.
