Managing Economic Volatility and Crises Joshua Aizenman, Brian Pinto, 2005-10-03 Economic volatility has come into its own after being treated for decades as a secondary phenomenon in the business cycle literature This evolution has been driven by the recognition that non linearities long buried by the economist's penchant for linearity magnify the negative effects of volatility on long run growth and inequality especially in poor countries This collection organizes empirical and policy results for economists and development policy practitioners into four parts basic features including the impact of volatility on growth and poverty commodity price volatility the financial sector's dual role as an absorber and amplifier of shocks and the management and prevention of macroeconomic crises The latter section includes a cross country study case studies on Argentina and Russia and lessons from the debt default episodes of the 1980s and 1990s Community-based Coastal Observing in Alaska ,2007 Assessment of the 2016/17 Food Insecurity Response Programme in Malawi Babu, Suresh Chandra, Comstock, Andrew, Baulch, Bob, Gondwe, Anderson, Kazembe, Cynthia, Kalagho, Kenan, Aberman, Noora-Lisa, Fang, Peixun, Mgomezulu, Overtoun Placido, Benson, Todd, Following poor harvests in the 2015 16 cropping season in Malawi vulnerability assessments found that nearly 6 7 million people primarily in the Southern and Central regions were likely to suffer from food insecurity before the next harvest The government of Malawi and its development partners designed the 2016 17 Food Insecurity Response Programme FIRP in Malawi to meet the food needs of many of the households affected mobilizing approximately USD 265 million in resources to do so In the wake of this intervention a team led by the International Food Policy Research Institute was contracted to assess the quality of this humanitarian response along four primary dimension Assess the quality of the national food security assessments which began the response Investigate the accuracy of the geographical and beneficiary targeting within selected areas conduct an operational assessment of the humanitarian response design and implementation and Assess overall programme and draw technical market and methodological implications for the design of future humanitarian responses and their contribution to resilience building This Discussion Paper provides considerable detail on which facets of the implementation of FIRP were successful and where implementation fell short in addressing the needs of the affected population in ensuring that Malawi was better prepared for future food crises and in laying a foundation for improved resilience in the face of such shocks for both the affected households and Malawi as a whole The 2016 17 FIRP was largely successful in preventing disaster and saving lives and livelihoods However the assessment of the design and implementation of the FIRP highlighted the high level of dependency of the Malawi government on its development partners for resources to undertake such humanitarian responses and the significant deficiencies in the technical and institutional capacity of the institutions responsible for responding Unless the cycle of food insecurity is broken and the resilience of Malawian food systems increased the government of Malawi and its development partners will continue to depend on FIRP type interventions to save people s lives and protect them from food insecurity and hunger Targeting of Food Aid in Rural Ethiopia Thomas S. Jayne, 2000 The Development of a Community Economic Development Targeting Model John Stuart Bain, 1983 Anti-corruption Efforts and African Economic Development United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Foreign Relations. Subcommittee on African Affairs, 2001 Development and Women's Reproductive Health in Ghana, 1920-1982 Holly Ashford, 2022-12-09 This book investigates the history of women s reproductive health in Ghana arguing that between the 1920s and 1980s it was largely driven by discourses of development and population control rather than a concern for women s health or rights Between the 1920s and 1980s the choices that Ghanaian women made regarding their reproductive health were defined by development policy and practice Spanning the colonial and immediate postcolonial periods this book demonstrates that whilst the substance of development discourse shifted over time principles of development continued to be used to impact and legitimise reproductive health policy and practices well after independence. The book explores Ghana's pluralist health system, the introduction of maternal and child welfare, the dominance of the Red Cross in Ghana's maternal and child health landscape, nationalist pronatalism and global population activism. In order to understand how global iterations of development and health policy impacted ordinary lives in Ghana, the author uses evidence from multiple levels including private papers, national archives and records of international and transnational organisations. Providing balanced archival perspectives, the book includes extensive oral history interviews carried out with both rural Ghanaian women and traditional birth attendants as well as with midwives, doctors and family planning fieldworkers. This book will have an important impact on a number of historical fields including Ghanaian history, global health history, global histories of population and family planning and histories of development. It will be of interest to researchers and students in the history of public health, development, Africa, Ghana and gender.

Kleppner's Advertising Procedure, Instructor's Manual with Video Guide Bertrand Russell, Jerry M. Engel, 2004-09 Ecosystem Approaches to the Management of Ocean-related Activities United Nations, 2011. Healthy ecosystems provide invaluable functions and services that are essential to the marine environment and to human well-being. Unfortunately, some human activities have had an adverse impact on the structure and functioning of marine ecosystems. A multitude of stressors such as pollution, overfishing, coastal development, invasive alien species and climate change have impaired the ability of these ecosystems to provide essential goods and services. This training manual focuses on the development and implementation of an ecosystem approach to the management of human activities and their impacts on the marine environment. An ecosystem approach is essentially an evolution of integrated coastal and ocean management with a greater emphasis on ecosystem goals and objectives and their outcomes.
